OAKLAND — Captain Hydro yells "Gallopin' Gallons" a lot while helping the East Bay Municipal Utility District (EBMUD) crusade against Water Bandit whose aim is to flood the world with wasted water.

Captain Hydro and Water Bandit are comic book characters being utilized as teaching tools by EBMUD. They are part of EBMUD's Water Awareness Through Education and Research program known more concisely as Project WATER.

This project is the only one of its kind in the country, according to Robert Johnson, Hydro's creator and acting consultant to EBMUD.

Johnson said the project has been so successful, requests for information and booklets are pouring in from water districts all over the country. Johnson indicated the EBMUD public information staff had helped him put Captain Hydro together by providing important data.

The content in "The Adventures of Captain Hydro" is aimed at upper elementary students. This Captain Hydro booklet is a blend of comic strip, science lessons about water's physical nature, a crossword puzzle using water terms, and math lessons on graphing and arithmetic.

Workbooks and teacher's guides for other grade levels vary in format. Audio-visual materials, posters and buttons are incorporated in the the program.

The idea behind the development of all of the materials used in the program is not to create another curriculum unit. The workbooks are designed to use water and conservation information to teach other subjects such as math and social studies. The data on water is absorbed at the same time.

Johnson said the materials do not deal exclusively with water conservation.

Grownups get down for a kid's game

LIVERMORE — Dozens of adult men will be on their hands and knees around a little circle of sand tomorrow night, shooting marbles in a bar.

It's Livermore Saloon owner Bob Yamamoto's way of bring good, clean gambling fun back into Livermore. "All the kids do nowadays is steal hubcaps and smoke marijuana," he grumbles as he deals out the cards in his saloon. Loud agreement from the circle of men around him.

Yamamoto was in the restaurant business before buying the 1029 Club on First Street about nine months ago and renovating it into the Livermore Saloon. "But I'm a gambler by profession," he says.

Any adult can sign up for the Thursday night marble tournament — anyone with $10, that is, to pay for nine marbles and all the hors d'oeuvres he or she can eat.

Yamamoto is "keeping things as fair as possible," with a careful slate of elimination rounds followed by the finals. He's installing a piece of indoor - outdoor carpet on which he will be tracing a circle and filling it with sand. Object is to knock your opponent's marbles out of the circle. Each marble is worth $1.

Ambulance Co. wants a home or it'll move

PLEASANTON — If the city can't find suitable quarters for a four-member Tri Cities Ambulance Service crew, the firm will pull them out of town.

That's the word from Bob Lee, g operations manager who'll plead his case to city council Monday night.

The Tri Cities ambulance crew lost a battle with planning commissioners last month over their current residence, a home rented on Guyson Court. Neighbors didn't want a rescue operation in their midst, complaining of noise, excessive driving speeds and damage to property values.

Planning commissioners listened to those complaints, and turned down Lee's request to maintain the Guyson Court address for the business.

Now Lee wants a new location, with moving expenses paid by the city, plus rent comparable to that at Guyson Court, or he'll move the Pleasanton crew to a house in Livermore.

"I intend to ask the City of Pleasanton for a guaranteed residential area where the crew can live and respond from," he said.

"Obviously the people who live in Guyson Court have their rights," Lee said. "I don't want to abuse their rights. However, I feel we're looking at a large picture and they're looking at a small picture."

A safety risk results, Lee said, if his ambulance company is moved up the freeway to Livermore. Response time is vital in ambulance emergencies, he pointed out, adding that of course, that time is increased with a move to Livermore.

Guyson Court, Lee added, is an ideal location, for response throughout Pleasanton.

He says his crew won't accept a proposal to locate in a Pleasanton fire station because, "I don't know of anyone who wants to live seven days a week, 365 days a year in a fire station."

Besides, it was pointed out, part of the Tri Cities crew is female. There are no female fire personel in town. Responding to criticism from neighbors on Guyson Court, Lee said his drivers don't switch on the ambulance siren until they reach the nearest main artery in town, Hopyard Road.

He also refuted a claim that the city subsidizes Tri Cities Ambulance Service to the tune of $27,000 yearly.

His firm's contract is with Alameda County, Lee said, not the city.

County can hold the line on tax rate

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The cost of running county government will shoot up nearly $51 million next year to a bulging $440.6 million in spending.

But the record budget, a 13 per cent increase over last year, can be financed with the current county property tax rate of $3.11, County Administrator Loren Enoch told the Board of Supervisors yesterday.

The additional $20.6 million the county will need to raise from property taxes will come from an estimated 15 per cent increase in property values.

Enoch offered to the board a similar no-tax-increase budget last year when property assessments jumped as much. But adjustment by the supervisors tacked another penny on the tax rate.

Employes' salaries and benefits between $155.8 and $165 million, depending on current contract negotiations, will consume the largest block of spending if the board eventually approves the budget. Social services will get $158.9 million, health care, $94 million, and the legal system, including the sheriff's department, some $84 million.

Another $8.5 million is budgeted for capital expenditures and will be added to $24.6 million in the accumulated capital outlay fund.

The lion's share of county revenue, some $173 million, or 39 per cent of the county budget, will come from the state and federal governments. Property tax will provide nearly $160 million, or 36 per cent of operating costs.

The balance comes from a $46 million carryover from this year and rebudgeting, $33 million in charges for county services, and fines, interest, licenses and other taxes.

Clean up

That "spring collection" of garden clippings is scheduled for the next two Saturdays, May 7 and 14. A previous announcement in The Times was in error.

This Saturday, May 7, residents in Stoneridge, Highland Oaks, Oakhill, Valley Trails, Foothill Farms, Mission Park, Del Prado, Val Vista and Rose Pointe may place bags of garden trimmings on the curb. Collection will begin at 5 a.m.

All other residential areas of the city will get the same service Saturday, May 14.

Mass for Bishop Begin

Pleasanton's St. Augustine's Catholic Church, 900 Angela St., will celebrate the Mass of the Resurrection in honor of Bishop Floyd Begin, of the Oakland Diocese, on Wednesday, May 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Edmond Cloutier asked in a statement that parishioners show their love for the late Bishop, who died on April 26, by participating in the celebration of the Eucharist (Mass) on May 4.

Leave ridge alone, city tells Nipper

PLEASANTON — City council yesterday asked county supervisors to reject a planning commission recommendation and scrap Carl Nipper's proposed 95-unit housing development on Pleasanton Ridge.

A letter to the board of supervisors states that the development should be rejected because "so many unanswered questions in major areas are raised by the conditions of approval to justify disapproval of the project."

Besides being inconsistent with the county general plan, city council contends Nipper's proposal will push growth beyond state expectations, cost taxpayers too much to provide minimal service to the area, and may cause problems with its private sewage disposal system.

Nipper intends to construct 95 homes on 440 acres on the face of the Pleasanton Ridge. County planners voted 6-1 last month to approve the plan "in principle," ignoring a staff recommendation to disallow Nipper's development.

The Preserve Area Ridgelands Committee (PARC), is expected to appeal the planning commission's ruling.

Nipper proposes a private sewer package to service the development. County health officials are hesitant to approve the system since only one such plant is currently in operation (in Milpitas), and they feel not enough is known about its operation.

After approving the proposal, county planning commissioners suggested supervisors adopt a policy whether to allow private sewage systems in unincorporated areas of the county.

City council reminded supervisors it testified during hearings on the Valley element to the county general plan "that no urbanization should occur outside of presently incorporated communities."

Records destroyed

Doctor tells patients: Get out

Gerald M. Price, M.D., the doctor who vacated his Pleasanton offices to leave patients troubled over the fate of their medical records, has written a bitter explanation of his actions to The Times.

"Please do not attempt to get your records," Dr. Price says in a hand - written note mailed from his new home in North Carolina. "They are worthless scribblings and have mercifully been destroyed. Find yourself a good doctor," he admonishes his former patients.

The tone of Dr. Price's letter, addressed to "Editor, Pleasanton Times" also suggests the general practioner left the community and California with some bitter memories.

"To my patients: I have enjoyed being your doctor — but the moral sewer which is California today has made my presence useless and wasteful of my energies."

And in another paragraph he advises his former patients: "Get the heck out of California before it really gets bad. The drought will turn 75 per cent of California into an arid alkaline basin unfit for crops for 25,000 years. Furthermore the risk of fires, earthquakes, diseases cannot be overstated. Those who do not leave have themselves to blame," the note concludes. It is signed: "Gerald M. Price, M.D."

State agency nixes sewer plant funding

LIVERMORE — City council members were shocked Monday to learn they may not get the federal funding assured them last month for expansion of the water treatment plant.

City Manager Bill Parness read a letter from the state water resources control board which said "The Division of Water Quality will not recommend funding for the city's project to expand existing facilities for reclamation at this time."

Signed by a staff member for Larry F. Walker, manager of the Clean Water Grant Program, the letter indicated the state board will be requested to fund an areawide wastewater reclamation study for the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency next fiscal year.

"Your proposed project will be consolidated with that study for the purpose of facilities planning," said the letter, which indicated recommendations would be presented to a state board workshop meeting to be held either Thursday or Friday.

Parness indicated the city should contest the action.

"That was contradictory to the impression we got when we appeared before the state board last month," Parness told The Times.

Mayor Helen Tirsell, Councilman John Staley and Public Works Director Dan Lee appeared at a Sacramento hearing mid-April and were told the city would be able to have financing for the first two phases of the expansion that would allow another million gallons per day (MGD) capacity at the local plant.

They went into the hearing knowing Livermore was on line for an initial funding next year of $64,000 for facilities planning, and hadn't expected the additional $640,000 for Step Two (plans specifications).

The additional 1 MGD is planned for new industry to create more jobs for the community and Tirsell was obviously displeased with the letter.

"They get you going and coming," she said, slamming a pencil down on her desk. "That's two years in a row."

Livermore officials were frustrated last year because of a mixup last September which resulted in removal from the state's priority list.

At that time, state board officials erroneously judged that Livermore had already exceeded a limitation that municipalities can only receive one grant for expanding treatment plant capacity.

Livermore has received two state grants. The first one, in the late 1960's when the plant was expanded from 2.5 MGD to the present 5 MGD, preceded the policy.

The second, in 1974, was for a treatment process modification for increasing standards, and not for expansion.

"I'll bet Larry Walker doesn't even know that letter was sent," said Tirsell, who instructed Parness to "get on the phone" and to straighten out the confusion.

Parness was also annoyed the letter was sent to Bill Loftin, superintendent of the water reclamation plant, instead of to his office.

County leaders search for ways to trim budget

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — County administrator Loren Enoch has 10 ways to slash the record $440.6 million budget he offered the board of supervisors yesterday.

Along with a 22-page budget summary, 777-page budget message, and inch-and-a-half supplemental, detailed budget, he proposes:

- "Scrutinizing" 19 policy items already in the budget totaling more than $4 million.
- Denying some $1.24 million not in the budget, but contained in 30 requests by various departments and agencies.
- Supporting pending or proposed legislation in Sacramento that will offer tax relief and increased state funding of partnership programs.
- Freezing vacant jobs to the end of the fiscal year to add more money to the cash carry over.
- Freezing equipment purchases through the same period if they were not authorized or requested by yesterday's budget message.
- Starting July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year, freezing all vacancies over first-level supervisor until the positions are reviewed and authorized only "where no other alternatives exist." The county could save an estimated $1.2 million, according to Enoch.
- Reviewing all capital improvement projects slated for 1977-78, some $8.5 million this coming year, and $24.6 million in the county's accumulated capital outlay fund.
- Declaring a moratorium on full county assumption of additional countywide programs "unless there is some financial participation by the cities."
- Reviewing all grant applications with an eye toward immediate and future county obligations. In the past the county has accepted grants tied to a "maintenance of effort" clause that requires local funding when the initial "seed money" runs out.
- Adopting a "firm policy" limiting all departments to their 1977-78 budgets.

No tax increase in budget

The budget includes $6.1 million in federal revenue sharing funds used to offset the tax rate.

County employment will rise less than 1 per cent to 9,850 personnel.

Department heads had submitted budgets totalling $459 million with 10,255 employes.

Major increases this year include an estimated $9.8 million in salaries and benefits, $5.3 million more to the state for its share of property tax, and an additional $4.4 million toward the legal system.

"Law and justice," — the courts, district a attorney's, and public defender's offices and the sheriff's department — put the greatest strain on property tax revenues, Enoch said.

They consume 42 per cent of the tax levy and nearly 22 per cent of the total general fund appropriation.

Enoch blasted the state, saying Sacramento has failed to live up to its partnership program and is now taking nearly 95 cents of the county's $3.11 property tax rate.

He served the board a 10-point outline on ways to decrease the total tax levy.

The budget must be approved by June 30. Public hearings will begin June 7.

The tax rate must be set by Sept. 1.

Heritage Guild 11th hour mixup threatens plan

LIVERMORE — An eleventh hour mixup with applications for state park funding may have cost the Livermore Heritage Guild an expected $50,000 for renovation of the Duarte Garage as an agricultural and transportation museum.

Guild members Janet Newton and Demetra Wilson appeared before city council Monday in a frantic effort to save funding for their project after they learned Livermore Area Recreation and Park District had submitted an application for nine projects, not including theirs.

County supervisors had ruled that 5 per cent of the funding should go to historical preservation projects, but LARPD's list provided its share to work on the Ravenswood Mansion restoration project.

City Manager Bill Parness told council he had just learned the city and LARPD was listed as a "dual agency allocation" and both must concur in any project applications. Deadline was yesterday and council approved the LARPD list of nine projects, rather than lose the allocation.

Council also voted to ask the state for a deadline extension in hopes of calling a joint emergency meeting with LARPD to get some money for the Duarte Garage project.

Parness noted that throughout the allocation arguments, no clarification had been made on the concurrence procedure which does not allow the city to deviate from the LARPD list if the list is to be accepted.

The nine projects total $186,000 which is part of funding voters approved last November as Proposition 2.

"If the historical preservation funds had been taken from the top with the county supervisors' original formula," said Wilson, "we would have received the money."

"This lack of clarity of who has the authority has been a problem from the beginning," noted Newton.

"I'm for saving Ravenswood too," said Councilman Glen Dahlbacka, "but we should save a variety of buildings, including residences and buildings that people worked in."

Inflation blamed

Huge county budget up $51 million

Inflation, and not just the kind that limits purchasing power, is the nemisis of this year's record $440.6 million Alameda County budget, according to county administrator Loren Enoch.

And while his budget does not call for an increase in the $3.11 property tax rate, "the property tax burden falls even heavier in 1977-78" than it did last year, he adds.

The budget is up some $51 million this year, an increase of 13 per cent. And property taxes will have to account for $20.6 million of the rise.

"The single most significant factor in the increase in county government is the accumulative effect of inflation," says Enoch.

He puts the blame on the state.

"Over a period of years, the state has transferred an increasing fiscal obligation to counties by not recognizing the effects of inflation."

Unloading the second barrel, the state has tied the county's fiscal obligation to Sacramento to an index that reflects inflation for the state.

The higher the assessed value of property, the bigger the state's cut.

That means, says Enoch, that the state's contribution to "partnership programs" remains fixed while the county's rises with costs.

Meanwhile, the state pulls in an ever larger portion of the property tax collected by the county.

This year 95-cents of the $3.11 will go to the Capitol. Last year it was 68-cents.

And like all buyers, the county's purchasing power has slid in the face of rising operating costs.

Enoch calls it "the failure of the Legislature to assume responsibility for increasing local costs and the failure of the Administration to recognize inflation over a period of years."

Federal funds channeled to community services have increased by 137 per cent, says Enoch, while a constant $6.1 million of federal revenue sharing dollars have gone to offset property taxes in each of the past four years.

The county also suffers from an unemployment rate 8.50 per cent higher than the national average, and 28 per cent higher than the state.

Unemployment in the county hit a "low" of 10.4 per cent in March of this year, down from 13.6 per cent last July.

The state is holding at 8 per cent and the nation at 7.3 per cent as of March.

"It really impacts on medical needs and law and justice," said Enoch. "Were it not for federal progarms and social service requirements, the cost would be up drastically."

The county's legal arm pulls most heavily on the property tax roll, according to Enoch, "with 80-cents out of every dollar of tax levy going to support law and justice."

By contrast, he says 57 per cent of all health service money and 24 per cent of welfare dollars come from property taxes.

Using federal revenue sharing and anti-recession funds alloted the county, health and welfare benefits take a smaller bite out of the property tax bill, he adds.

Capital improvements are up $1.125 million to $8.5 millionthis year because the county, like everyone, is working with a devalued dollar.

Enoch suggests funding the downtown Oakland jail and courthouse facilities with long-term financing, and using the $24.6 million accumulated capital outlay pot "to face the realities of additional detention requirements for both pre- and post-sentenced prisoners."

Free speech tests for tots

LIVERMORE — How good is a three - year - old's speech supposed to be?

Livermore parents who are worried about the development of their preschoolers are invited to bring them to Livermore Unified School District speech therapists for a free screening that could cost more than $100 if done by a private practitioner. Appointments should be made by May 14 (call Lilas Bowman at Green School, 447 - 1610, or Helen Rowe at Jackson, 447 - 6511) for the tests, which will be given June 1,2 and 3 at the First Presbyterian Church.

Can strangers understand the child's speech? By the time the tot enters school his or her speech should be understandable even if not all words are articulated correctly.

Are sentences at least three to six words long? The child should not be grunting and pointing or making one - word sentences such as "water." He or she should be able to say, "I want water."

Can the child understand concepts such as big and small, body parts, simple shapes, a few colors? If not, some work on concept development may be in order.

Does the child omit some sounds in a word? It's normal for children 3 - 5 years old to have trouble with "s", "l", "r" and "th" sounds — for example, saying "wed" for "red." This is just because some children develop physically faster than others.

But there could be a hearing problem — often due to allergies in the Valley — indicated when a child misses "p", "b", "m" or "t" in a word.

Anyone who suspects a language or articulation problem should bring the preschooler (at least three years old) to the screening to be checked, Jordan urges. "It's not just for articulation, which we commonly think of as a speech problem," he points out.

"In Livermore, we see more children with language problems than articulation problems."

Methods used by the district's eight speech therapists include physically holding a child OVER a table to illustrate the concept OVER; then setting the tot ON the table; then having the child crawl UNDER the table.

A typical speech therapy session lasts about 25 minutes and involves drill followed by a game to reinforce the drill, says Jordan.

All the district's therapists hold bachelor's degrees in communicative disorders, most from the University of the Pacific, San Jose or San Francisco State. Most also hold a master's degree in the same specialty and have credentials for speech and hearing therapy.

But it doesn't take a credential to help along a child's speech. Jordan offers these tips for parents:

●Talk to your children while performing ordinary household chores. "Put the big round dishes away." "Set the book under the teddy bear."

The idea that "children should be seen and not heard" retards their development, the therapist asserts. They should be encouraged to express themselves.

●Give children a chance to tell you about their experiences. "The fact that Johnny beat Tommy in a Big Wheels race may not mean much to Dad, but it means a lot to the kid," Jordan points out. "Let him tell you about it."

●Don't compare your children to the neighbors.' "Children's development differs so much, even within one family," says the therapist. "You can't tell what is normal or abnormal just from comparison. Sure, some kids can pronounce 'r' at the age of four. Some can't. Both are normal."

●Don't let your child be lazy. "If he knows how to say, 'I want a glass of water,' don't let him point and grunt."

●Stuttering is a normal part of most children's speech development and only means the child is probably searching for the right way to say something. Parents should never make mention of the hesitation or it will only make the child worry about how to say something instead of what to say. Ultimately it will make the stuttering into a real problem, Jordan predicts.

●Read to your children, take them to zoos, parks and other spots where they can broaden their horizons, play games with them, teach them the parts of their body, colors and other simple concepts.

●If in doubt, sign up for an appointment with a therapist so your child can begin therapy this summer with the school district's five - week summer school program.

Trustees OK lease pact on 9 Dublin classrooms

The Murray School District board has responded to a teachers unit contract proposal by offering "approximately" 4.5 per cent in salary and fringe benefits for 1977-78.

The counter-proposal came during a meeting of trustees Monday night that also focused on an evaluation report of the Early Childhood Education program and approval of a contract to lease nine classrooms and playground space at Dublin School to Valley Christian Center.

The latter pact must now be ratified by the administration of the center. If terms are deemed acceptable, the center would commence using classrooms this summer.

In addition to the salary and benefits counter - proposal, the board states it "shall submit to binding arbitration those grievances that are found by the board not to be detrimental to the efficient and effective operation of the school district. All other grievances shall be submitted to advisory arbitration." This would occur at Level III of the grievance procedure.

The board statement adds, "If it is determined that the grievance may have a detrimental impact, the grievant (teacher), upon request, shall receive a written statement of the board's rationale and shall, upon request, have a right to appear with his/her representative before the board in executive session, to state his/her position."

Les Schmidt, curriculum coordinator for the district, reporting on the ECE evaluation by the state, said the district will not receive expansion funding for the coming school year.

"Each year," states Schmidt, "the state department computes the district eligibility for ECE program expansion. Murray School District was determined to be eligible for expansion funding for 10.8 per cent of the total district K-3 average daily attendance (ADA). Based upon data supplied to the state department (by Murray) in January, the next two priority schools exceed this expansion percentage."

The next two are Donlon, with an ADA of 594 and per cent of 28.3, and Lydiksen, with an ADA of 394 and per cent of 18.8.

Schmidt adds that while Nielsen School falls within the eligibility quota, the district has already established the phase-in schedule for 1977-78.

Thus, the ECE program in the Murray district will continue at Dublin, Frederiksen, Cronin, Fallon, and Murray. The latter two were placed in the program this past September.

Wally Moreskine, acting assistant superintendent, reported on allocation of district portables. The recommendations, approved by the board, included:

One portable each to Cronin, Donlon, Dublin and Fallon. This will enable the district to return five leased portables currently at Donlon. — by Al Fischer

Livermore trustees study audit

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Unified School District board will hold another public meeting tonight in the Education Center, 685 Las Positas Blvd.

The board held its regular meeting last night. Tonight's special meeting is limited to the following items: Review of annual audit for 1975 - 6; Approval of application for federal special education funds; First reading of a board policy and regulation on naming or re - naming of facilities; Second (of three) reading on board regulation for Title IX, anti - sex discrimination; Refusal of a claim for injury.

The public meeting, beginning 7:30 p.m., will be followed by a closed session on negotiations and personnel.

Lawrence Livermore Laboratory bioengineer Tim Merrill (left) and Livermore High School senior Scott Williford check the features of an automatic cell sorter that can analyze 400 cells per second. Williford, a participant in this year's Career Day, spent the day at LLL to learn what bioengineering is all about.

Students see lab pros in 'Career Day' action

Sponsored by the Twin Valley YMCA, more than 200 high school students in Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin participated in the seventh annual Career Day with various sponsors in those communities.

Twin Valley YMCA Program program director Stan Cowen said the goal of Career Day is "to put high school students with a career interest into the community for a day to see what that career is all about." Cowen says the program is very popular with the students, since they don't often get the chance to watch professionals in a working environment.

At the Lawrence Lab, students observed researchers working in the fields of biology, biochemistry, engineering, geology, meteorolgy and physics They were treated to lunch and toured the Visitors Center as part of their day at the Lab.

Livermore High senior Scott Williford spent the day with Lab bioengineer Tim Merrill to learn how biology and engineering are combined in the design of sophisticated research equipment. Williford plans to attend UC Davis next year to study bioengineering.

Drama pupils at Pleasanton plan comedy

School bd. to oppose legislation?

The Alameda County Board of Education, at its meeting scheduled for Thursday, is expected to register opposition to legislation concerning school district trustee areas.

Board members will convene at 8 p.m. in Room 132 of the county offices on West Winton Avenue in Hayward.

Other items to be considered include filling of approved summer school positions, approval of budget transfers, and adoption of an administrative law judge's decision in the matter of reduction of teaching staff at special schools.

At a meeting two weeks ago, the county board authorized Superintendent Rock LaFleche to file a joint proposal for federal Special Education funding for Sunol Glen, Mountain House, Piedmont, Emery, and Albany school districts for the year 1977-78. Dan Johnson was designated to serve as advisor.

Pleasanton schools' chief details teacher pact terms

The hours of employment section and portions of the proposed assignment and transfer policy, as presented by Pleasanton teachers in their 1977-78 contract proposal, represent significant changes from current procedures, according to Pleasanton schools chief Bruce Newlin.

Leading a District - Community Council review of the Amador Valley Teachers Association (AVTA) proposal Monday night, Newlin said that teachers are now required to be in their classroom 30 minutes prior to the start of classes and until 30 minutes after.

Pleasanton teacher unit negotiators have proposed 15-minute time periods prior to opening of their session.

They are also asking for a "maximum of three evening supervisory activities for the duration of the contract" (1977-78). These three would be selected from Back to School Night, open houses, PTA meetings, required night conferences and any others as assigned by the principal.

Assignment and transfer requests take almost five pages of the contract proposal.

Teachers are asking that any teacher to be transferred have the right to indicate preferences from a list of vacancies and "be given first choice." The latter varies from wording contained in the proposal for 1976-77.

The assignment and transfer section, according to Newlin, elicited major differences of opinion between the school board and AVTA during negotiations of the past year.

Wording of one key section states: "An involuntary transfer shall be based upon seniority in the district, program needs (including school and student needs), appropriate credential, academic preparation (including major and minor), and demonstrated pupil welfare." Newlin opined this could be subject to arbitration.

The proposal further states, "Notice of involuntary transfer for the following school year shall be given to teachers as soon as possible and not later than May 15, except when mutual agreement to waive the deadline exists."

"A 'good faith effort' must also include consistent communication with the affected teacher(s) to inform him/ her of all district openings. In the event the teacher does not agree with an administration - initiated transfer, he/ she shall have the right to appeal to the superintendent."

Under another section, leave of absence for illness or injury, teachers are asking that leave be accumulative "without limit as long as the individual is employed in the district."

Under present state law, leave is both accumulative and transferable to other school districts.

For example, any teacher transferring into the Pleasanton district who had accumulative a number of days (10, 15 or 20 for example), would retain those days and could use them in the local district.

A public hearing on the contract proposal of AVTA's is scheduled for Wednesday, May 11 at district offices.

Unique designs haven't paid off

It doesn't pay to be unique, testifies Dublin artist Joan Rood. Along with her mother, Betty Lou Westcott of Alameda, Joan creates transluscent wall-hangings and life-like insects from stones.

"We've been to alot of shows," sighs Joan, "but no art shows have a category we can enter. And lots of people pass us by because they think we're just offering more stained glass."

The Stone Brokers, as they bill themselves, do have a craft that is similar to stained glass, especially when designs catch the light. Their technique was first developed by Betty Lou, who substituted semi-precious stones instead of glass in the Tiffany stained glass method of assembly.

Rock slabs are bought wholesale from Joan's father, tumble polished to achieve a permanent luster, then added to a design that has been individually created for each rock. "We look at each stone and ask ourselves if it can be something," laughs Joan. "Some rocks, like lace agate, are perfectly suited for butterflies."

Other varieties of slabs used include Brazilian agate and green moss agate, with touches of color added by pink quartz, purple amethyst and orange carnelian. Every design is unique due to each stone's particular pattern.

A touch from a soldering iron transforms an already beautiful rock slab into a slithering spider, a delicate sailboat racing against the wind or even a windchime.

Joan and Betty Lou will have the opportunity to grab the public's eye at the spring Ladybug Boutique, which opens today at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds cafeteria at noon, and will continue through Thursday. Today's hours are noon to 9 p.m., with Thursday's set from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A juried show made up of artists and craftspeople from in and out of the valley, the Ladybug Boutique is held annually and will feature items ranging from macrame to Victorian pen-and-ink sketches and leather goods.

The Boutique will also be held in at Concord's Holiday Inn May 19 and at the Le Baron Hotel in San Jose June 9.

For more information about the Stone Brokers, call Joan Rood at 829-4657.

Traffic Lights

The outcry following that tragic auto incident on Holmes Street is understandable. The petition now being circulated in demand of signal lights at that crossing is one answer; but not the best one.

Holmes Street and First Street in Livermore are typical of the "thoroughfares" which once prevailed throughout the Valley ... major county or even state routes which doubled as important local streets. Virtually all of these have been eliminated or re-routed over the years. Route 84 is the last of the state highways through the heart of a Valley urban center. It must be re-routed.

When Governor Brown placed new highway construction well down in his own expectations for state budgeting, he eliminated any opportunity for action on ancient bottlenecks like Route 84. But that does not make this congestion of state and local traffic any more acceptable to the people of Livermore.

It will not bring back Anthony Thomas. It will not protect the lives of other children who must cross that busy thoroughfare, somewhere along its dozen intersections with city streets.

We urge the city to revive its attack on the State of California for funding that would redirect through traffic along the extension of Isable Avenue, and thence due north to Interstate 580. That will be a long fight, but it is a victory Livermore must win.

In the meantime, we suggest that local authority consider the example of Reno in that Nevada city's struggle with "heavy traffic and school crossings." Reno places all flashing "School Crossing" signals on clocks; the signal is only activated (red, amber or blank) at the appropriate hours of need.

It is a suggestion which might make signal lights on busy Holmes Street more acceptable to the State Highway Commission.

Loaded dice

"If it weren't for California, Nevada would go broke."

That's an honest appraisal by one Nevada businessman of his state's thriving economy. Problem is, it could be California "going broke" even while our neighbor's economy booms.

There's no question that the gambling lure in Las Vegas, Reno and Tahoe is pulling in millions of California dollars every day ... dollars that might otherwise enable this state to abolish its income tax, place a $5 ceiling on all property taxes, and exempt business and industry from that once - every - March "inventory tax."

Nevada can be that generous largely because of its tax income from gambling, an industry supported by Californians. Now we learn that large chunks of California commerce and industry are shifting over to Nevada, or any neighboring state, simply because none of those states levy the "inventory tax."

J.C. Penney Company is just one recent example. That company is completing a $50 million plant including 1.5 million square feet of warehouse space; 1600 fulltime and 800 seasonal employes. That investment belongs in California, where Penney's customers are. We lost it — and a lot more like it — because of one stupid "nuisance tax" on 'business inventories.

Governor Brown keeps insisting "California is not losing business and industry ... we are in fact gaining on both counts." Perhaps. But we could be gaining — or holding onto — a heck of a lot more if we took a hard look at our tax structure, and maybe even our prohibition on gambling casinos.

Nevada is booming these days, folks; and its all on California dollars. Should give any thinking person, even a governor, pause to think.

While he's at it, Governor Brown might investigate reports that Bechtel Corporation — the world's largest builder — is getting ready to move its headquarters from San Francisco to Houston. "Better climate in Texas for the building industry," is the reason.

Petition balance

Pleasanton Council Member Ken Mercer wants the council to require any petition circulator to list both the pro's and con's of whatever issue is being discussed so that petition signers will have heard both sides of the argument.

Sure, 300 people may want a stop sign somewhere, but another 300 may oppose it or maybe 500 don't care. Why can't the council know that information, too, says Mercer.

It's a noble idea to suggest that petitioners give both sides of the argument on their petitions. That's in the spirit of spreading the New England town meeting types of debates right to the grass roots. But Mercer, judging by his council speech last week, wants to require that both sides be litd on the petition. That amounts to a prior restraint on free speech, which, as Council Member Joyce LeClaire pointed out in the council debate, is a violation of the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment.

Mercer should drop the notion of requiring both sides being presented on the petition, though it would be a good idea for petitioners to voluntarily follow Mercer's idea. If it's an overwhelming cause, it should strengthen their arguments that much more.

Covering tragedy

Editor, The Times:

I decided to write this letter because I felt that many people have the wrong idea about Foothill Road and how dangerous it is. I live in one of the track homes on Foothill Road, I go to Foothill High School but more important is, I have my license.

I have driven Foothill many times and I feel that by lowering the speed limit you will accomplish absolutely nothing ... because the majority of people that drive the road would not stick to the speed limit, because they wouldn't want to go that slow and I'm pretty sure that the police would not be able to enforce it, unless they had a car on Foothill Road at all times.

People have said that if the speed limit was lowered the two kids that died recently would still be alive, well I feel that they are very wrong. I've heard from many different people that they were traveling way over the posted speed limit. The same thing is probably true of 90% of the accidents on Foothill Road that have happened, except maybe when the driver was drunk or stoned.

Also I would like to point out that if there were over-passes across 680 most people going to Pleasanton would take the over-pass which would reduce the accident rate on Foothill and it would save gas in a time of shortages.

Editor, The Times:

It is extremely sad when a situation develops in a community and the voice of the community is seemingly unaware.

I am sure you are aware that a young boy died this weekend from the injuries suffered when he was hit while attempting to cross Holmes Street in Livermore. I am sure you are also aware of the concerned people rising up to get some action taken by the City of Livermore to make Holmes Street safer for the children who must cross it.

May I ask why this important community story was not covered in the Valley Times?

The Fair Report

This was to be the week Alameda County Supervisors would receive a report from Roland Mayne's office on the County Fair Association, its operations and makeup.

But the pending report, which could react on the "shock scale" anywhere from a loud yawn to heated countercharges, has been temporarily eased aside by the latest chapter in The Great Sewer Debates.

This "chapter" is highlighted by the CARD committee telling the city they should review their 1958 contract for sewage treatment services with the county.

CARD co-chairman Wally Mayer, Jr., has alleged the pact has cost the city $455,000 in unclaimed treatment fees.

There is strong insinuation that IF the city does review the contract and IF this figure is founded (or anything approaching it), that the County Fair Association might have to whip out their check book and start repaying the city.

The matter could be considered so much sewage under the bridge, though we doubt CARD will let the matter slip off their very sharp hook.

All the while, the fair management and board has no comment. Other than, perhaps, to emit a few groans.

It appears, warranted or not, all the chickens are coming home to roost for the fair association at the same time.

A couple of weeks ago these columns made mention of "attitudes" prevalent in Sacramento, specifically in the legislature and Department of Fairs and Expositions and budget review, that bode nothing but ill for fairs.

The tip of the arrow seems to be pointed directly at racing fairs...of which Pleasanton is a prime example.

The Alameda County Fair Association can ill afford another Summer of '76, let alone any prospect of having to share in or pay sewage charges.

And that is why this report to the Supervisors has, obviously, taken on greater importance within the past few days.

Any review of the fair's operations must not only take into account the "attitudes" prevalent in Sacramento but the city-county pact of almost two decades ago (re. sewage connection fees).

To present a report leaving out these aspects would be unfair to all concerned, especially the Supervisors, county fair board members and all they serve.

If need be, we would suggest that the report be held until these matters of attitudes in Sacramento and contracts of years past (the 1958 city-county pact) are fully explored.

No smoking

Editor, The Times:

Mayor Tirsell's blast at disrespectful people who take up the spaces set aside for the handicapped was welcome and long overdue, so a big hooray for the Mayor.

Along the same lines, would like to see her take a stand on disrespectful smokers who chain smoke at public meetings polluting the air, forcing others to breathe second-hand smoke and others with lung impodiments to stay away.

It is my contention that disrespectful smokers are equally guilty as ones who take up parking spaces set aside for crippled people.

Editor, The Times:

As participants in the fund-raising event Dance Your Tootsies Off, the Foothill Band Boosters Club would like to extend a very large "Thank You" to the Senior Citizens of Pleasanton.

Our dance participants had a great time and will never forget the warmth and friendship extended to them by the VIP's.

We look forward to next year's event with the hope that more organizations will participate and help support this "fun for all" event.

Carter's message

Editor, The Times:

I must protest what seems a deliberate effort on the part of someone (broadcasters? industry?) to undercut the emphasis President Carter has placed on energy conservation.

I have heard commentators on the air to the effect that we need not worry since we have sufficient resources for the next hundred years.

Of course, we have enough energy sources for a century. Of course, water is in plentiful supply as long as there is rain. But what happens when the supply runs out in 100 years? What happens when it fails to rain?

The whole thrust of President Carter's message is that the inherent problems must be tackled Now — not when sources are depleted!

Livermore broke?

Editor, The Times:

Believe it or not, the following took place at the Livermore city council meeting last week. A tape recording of that meeting is on file at City Hall.

The city cannot afford to build a road to existing industry (East Ave. to Rad Lab and Sandia) much less for new industry.

The city is too poverty stricken to build a very necessary water storage tank.

The city is so poor that it asks the Rad Lab and Sandia to collect a parking fee from it's employes and turn it over to the city to fill it's depleted coffens.

The city is so unfortunate that it cannot afford a transit system.

Then, to cap it all the corporate bander, Mr. Turner, said that if new industry did not come to Livermore, the existing industry and the people would be punished by increased interest rates.

What industry in it's right mind would locate in this community?

Doesn't this city council realize that the millions of dollars taken out of Livermore by the wealthy corporations are responsible for our poverty?

Born again

Editor, The Times:

I would like to complement Mr. Muecke on his letter to the Editor in "The Times" April 29, for writing a short and to the point letter on his feelings in regards to the Jews abandoning their religion for, and the God Of Abraham's "feelings" about, the Lord Jesus Christ.

In rebuttal I would like to state that if Mr. Muecke would have read the scripture reference of John 3:1-18, that I gave, he would have seen that when Jesus coined a phrase "Born Again." He said it to Nicodemus, a pharisee (the most devout of orthodox Jews, Acts 26:5). Also he was a member of the sanhedrin, 70 religious men who ruled the Jews, whose President was the (High Priest). Jesus said that even he, Nicodemus, the Jew of Jews, had to be "Born Again." Jesus didn't ask Nicodemus to abandon his religion but to return to the God of Abraham.

In regards to the God of Abrahams' feelings, he glorified Jesus (Act 3:13-15) and even Abraham rejoiced of the time that Jesus would come (John 8: 56-58).

Being "Born Again" is not a matter of what religious sect one belongs to, it is a condition of the heart.

High home tax

Editor, The Times:

Today, like many other homeowners, in Pleasanton, I received my "Notice of New Value" for my residence. Many people will be overjoyed to see their values go up 18.5% like mine has, but since I bought my house to live in, and not as a money - making adventure, I am gravely alarmed at the increase. It will mean approximately $250 more a year in property taxes out of my single income as a teacher. My property taxes will now be 12% of my $13,884 yearly wage.

How ironical that is, coming from a so-called tax - robber such as a teacher!

Well, not really, look at it this way. Local school districts have budgeted no cost - of - living increases for the 1977-78 school year because of a fixed revenue limit established by the state. Property taxes could increase 30%, 40%, even 100%, but the revenue limit would remain the same. In fact, the school tax rate will go down, because of this fixed limit. So where are the property tax increases going? Certainly not to local schools!!

I hope everyone understands this complex problem, and demands accountablity of their property taxes. They might start with the state's $1 Billion surplus. Please don't cop out and blame it on local schools.

Student percentile

Editor, The Times:

An open reply to Neal Cavanaugh:

Thank you for your thoughts. In direct answer to your question about the basis for my remarks, I have noted the relative frequency with which I encounter young people who appear lacking in basic practical skills in an absolute sense. You persist in presenting statistics comparing students with one another. The public is interested in absolute performance as well. Specifying a percentile says nothing about the mean or the standard deviation. In my opinion, the scatter is too large. I do not pretend that responsibility for this rests entirely upon teachers.

It's rather sad that you seem to think the public has declared get your local teacher week. That attitude thwarts useful communication. You are appreciated, but it seems difficult to persuade you that there is a problem.

I am not unmindful of the considerable difficulties teachers labor under, including uncooperative or preoccupied parents, disinterested students and the occasional unruly brat who creatps so much turmoil that tpaching becomes impossible. Responsibility for the latter problem rests largely with groups like the American Civil Liberties Union, who have almost created a set of cement shoes in the area of discipline. It might help significantly if the students who want an education would unite and inform the individual what they thought of the performance.

Ad Council — A Public Service of This Newspaper & The Advertising Council

round the town

You can imagine how thrilled I was. Just one more item on a busy three - day schedule for - newspaper editors and publishers in Sacramento ... but oh, what an item!

"FRIDAY AFTERNOON — TOUR GOVERNOR'S RESIDENCE" it said.

To think that I would soon get to visit our beloved leader's pad ... to walk in the third - floor footsteps of He who has handed down such wisdom from that modest red - brick structure! It was more than this lowly servant could bear.

My mind was a - whirl with preparations for that visit ... Dare I take along a camera (a snap shot of Jerry's floor - level bed would be worth a small fortune, I reckoned ... but then quickly dispelled that capitalistic thought) ... Would Governor Jerr be there to greet us? ... Give us his autograph? ... Even give us some answers??

My euphoria was interrupted by female voice.

"Don't you think they mean 'a tour of the NEW governor's mansion' rather than having us all walk through that silly third - floor apartment Jerry Brown chooses to live in?" she suggested.

I had forgotten. There are indeed TWO governor's mansions in California. Just as we have two of everything else. The handsome edifice on the Sacramento River is one built during the high expectancy of Ronald Reagan's reign. Jerry Brown lowered his expectations and raised his residency ... to the third floor of that downtown apartment building. True to his modest ambitions, our beloved leader has steadfastly refused to occupy the million - dollar manse on the Sacramento's right bank.

It would be too much to ask, I supposed, for 200 representatives of the California press to go trapsing through Governor Jerr's third - floor walkup. State Fire Marshal would never permit it, for one thing.

Touring the NEW mansion is something else. A spacious layout, I am informed. More suited to the needs of a prosperous businessman than the humble expectations of this nation's foremost governor.

Governor Ron ordered the new residence built. Some years before his second term was to run its course. The old downtown residence was falling down. Passing trucks shook the ancient structure's foundations. The Reagan children were exposed to flying beer ca as they played in the back yard.

"Enough!?" Governor Ron proclaimed. "Let there be a new mansion which befits the leader of this great state ... an example whereby all Californians might be inspired to home ownership ... on the banks of the Sacramento River."

Well, as any fool, taxpayer knows, home ownership in California is not all that great these days. Costs a bundle just to get the leaky roof patched. One plugged plumbing could set you back a week's wages.

Governor Jerr, when he took over the state's housekeeping, quickly grasped that occupying a mansion was a luxury well beyond the means of a governor with a $44,000 salary plus modest expense allowances. It was the expense account which finally decided it for Jerr.

"Do you mean to tell me they expect me to maintain those grounds around the new Governor's Mansion on this paltry $600 - per - month gardener's allowance?" he demanded. "And what's this ... $3000 a year for 'maintenance and upkeep'?? Why, I couldn't maintain a Turlock tract home with that kind of money."

And so it was that Governor Brown made his first and most profound decision upon taking office — He abandoned the new manse on the river in favor of a modest Sacramento apartment. Early reports are he will pocket $10,000 just in household expenses by that move.

And then it came to me! California newspaper people must tour the NEW governor's mansion in order to make note of an OLD middle class standard: Home ownership, as our forefathers knew it, is now for the birds.

Suddenly, everything the state legislators have been trying to tell us came into focus! SB 90 and AB 62 ... Income Equality for Every Student ... Lower Your Expectations!

It is the ancient expectancy of home ownership that must be lowered, obliterated. After all, if the governor of this state cannot afford to live in his own single- family manse, then who are YOU to aspire to such lofty goals?

And so we will tour the New Governor's Mansion ... like so many ancient historians in pursuit of a California that was, way back when.

Immediately following there will be a press tour of the New State Capitol Building. Spacious office space for a new breed of politician. Costing us $50 mil, but worth every penny! If they're going to have to watch us suffer, at least they can do so in comfort.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We have to move to a smaller apartment which means my two youngest sons will have to share a room. My wife and the boys are upset but I see no solution in the light of rising rents. I can't squeeze any more money out of my boss. The boys are 6 and 8 and I wonder if sharing a room will have any serious effect. I'm less worried than my wife because I never had a room of my own until I was out of college. I survived without any great traumas. — H.B.

DEAR H.B.: A great deal has been written about the dangers of crowding but recent evidence has shown that the problems have been greatly exaggerated. In some cases, crowding may even have good results. Certainly, there is no danger for two brothers as young as your sons to share a room.

Philippe Aries, a cultural historian, wrote that rooms didn't become separated by function until the 18th century when the family began to hold society at a distance. The idea of "a room of one's own" came very late in man's history.

Anthropologist Edward Hall says our cultural background is the most important determinant of the conditions under which we feel crowded. People usually want to repeat the patterns of spatial living they knew in their youth. Those who grew up with the whole family sharing one or two rooms are apt to live in one or two rooms with their family even though they may have very spacious homes. Those who have had separate rooms as children find it extremely difficult to live in close quarters as adults.

Your sons will learn to share and to find their own space even in the one room. Don't worry. This is not a hardship to either one.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We're thrilled with our first baby but are having some minor disagreements over whether he's smiling at us because we're his parents, or if he'd smile at almost anybody. He's six months old and is happy and healthy and laughs a lot. Is this unusual? Could it mean he'll have a good sense of humor? Or do all babies gurgle, smile and laugh a lot? — J.L.

DEAR J.L.: Recent research done by Dr. March H. Bornstein, a psychologist at Princeton, indicates that at a very early age babies seem to smile at and to recognize their parents as distinct from everyone else. In the past, it was thought that this recognition did not occur until they were about 8 months of age.

Among other things, the baby recognizes and smiles at his parents' voices. He reacts quite differently to strangers.

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton discovered that babies also respond differently to fathers than to mothers. This is probably related, however, to the amount of time spent with the child, rather than to the sex of the parent.

I don't know if your baby's smiles and laughter indicate that he's going to be a comedian, or even if he's going to have an unusually good sense of humor, but it does indicate that so far in his life, he's happy, contented and feels loved. The extent of a baby's lack of human companionship can be measured by his smile, or the absence of a smile. If human deprivation is extreme, no smile appears at any stage of infancy. Institutional babies, who are robbed of love and attention from Mother or a surrogate mother, may tend to smile indifferently at all visitors. I think you can be certain that your baby recognizes you and is smiling just for you.

Q. "WHAT IS CHALK MADE OF?"

When you write with chalk on a chalkboard you are writing with a soft limestone rock made from the shells of tiny sea animals called foraminifera (pronounced foram-i-NIF-er-a). When these animals die, their tiny shells sink to the ocean floor. Long ago, in some ancient sea, thick layers of their limey shells became cemented and compressed into a soft, white limestone called "chalk."

To make writing chalk, the chalk rock is crushed into a fine powder. The best chalkboard chalk is about 95 per cent chalk. The chalk powder is mixed in a big mixing kettle with a liquid containing a binding material to keep the finished crayon from crumbling. The chalk paste is then pressed into the shape of a chalk crayon and baked until it is hard enough to write with. By adding coloring pigment, chalk crayons can be made in any color. Chalk can be used in making many other useful products such as putty, paints, and even toothpaste.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a male, 20 years old. About a month ago I began isometric exercises because my build was thin and weak. I have developed some muscles but when they aren't flexed the muscles appear fatty, especially the breast muscles. Are there any exercises that can trim down the fat? Would jogging help trim down my whole body?

DEAR READER — For the benefit of other readers, isometric exercises involve tensing the muscles but not moving them. A good example would be to hold the arm still with the elbow bent and then voluntarily contract the arm muscles without bending the elbow either way. We have opposing groups of muscles. In the case of the arm the biceps at the front bends the elbow and the triceps on the back of the arm straightens the elbow. If you contract both simultaneously the elbow doesn't move and the two groups of muscles (biceps and triceps) contract or work against each other.

Anytime a muscle contracts against resistance it is working and such exercises increase the muscle's strength. Weight lifting is a good example of strength or resistance exercise.

Isometric exercises may not develop smooth regular muscle enlargement. The enlargement occurs only where the localized stress is applied. By contrast exercises that use the muscle through its range of motion help to develop all the muscle fibers with a smoother-looking enlargement.

As you build muscles it helps to eliminate fat. Loss of muscle mass makes it easier for the body to gain fat. That is one of the hidden reasons why some people can't lose weight even with a good diet. They have allowed their muscles to get so small from lack of use that they don't use many calories at rest. A muscular body of the same weight will use more calories while the person is sitting than a body of the same weight with less muscle and more fat.

Jogging helps increase the overall strength of the body but is particularly useful in building up the heart and lung function. It is for the person who has already developed a good walking program and can walk an hour without difficulty and who has no medical problems that would rule out a more vigorous exercise program. It will help you burn off some calories. Fat is stored calories. Walking long enough every day will also help.

If you walked one hour a day, a distance of three miles every day for a year you would use the calories needed to form 18 pounds of body fat.

England beat Argentina quite badly in their 1976 Olympiad match in spite of this unfortunate hand.

The English South's six-heart bid wasn't nearly as bad as it looks when you see all the cards. He was sure that his partner could not hold more than one spade and just happened to overlook the possibility that he would hold no hearts. So the defense cashed two quick spade tricks.

The bidding went the same at the other table up to and including West's four-spade bid. At this point in time North elected to double four spades, South had no reason to disturb that contract and the defense cashed three hearts and two aces to collect 500 points — a net profit of 600 points, or 12 IMPs.

This hand was played 22 times in the Olympiad and only 10 pairs found the diamond slam with only one match tying when both teams bid and made it.

This just shows the difficulty of bidding freak hands successfully.

Dublin incorporation by 1980—if

DUBLIN — If everything clicks, Dublin could become incorporated by April 1978, according to Dublin Chamber of Commerce vice- president Dave Burton.

Burton announced this possibility to other chamber directors Monday evening.

Last year, the chamber became interested in making a study about the feasibility of incorporating Dublin. They were neither pro or con on the subject but wanted to present facts to the public.

Burton was made coordinator of the project this March. Later, he remained in charge of the project but as a resident — not a chamber member.

Burton said this status change was made so he could state his personal views without worrying about inadvertently implicating the chamber in any way.

Burton said county officials had indicated April or May would be a better time than November to put the incorporation issue to a vote.

"As I understand it, if the vote went through in April or May, the county would only have to continue to provide services until June 1, which is the beginning of their next fiscal year," Burton explained. "If the issue isn't decided until November, the county will have to provide services that much longer. They would prefer to get it over and done with."

He said although the county would have to continue providing services for a period of time, the new city would begin taking care of their own monies immediately.

The chairmen of five special fact finding committees organized by Burton will meet at his home this evening to give their reports.

The committees are made up of volunteers. Each group's job is to learn all of the pro and con facts regarding incorporation.

The five committees are planning, political, contract services, budget and election planning/ publicity.

Burton said there were many complicated steps to take before the incorporation issue could reach ballot form.

"But we are going to maintain a positive attitude and keep working toward our goal," he said.

"No boulders or steelies allowed," the barkeeper rules. "The house supplies the marbles."

He remembers his own gambling career, which he says started at the age of nine when he would stake five of his ordinary marbles against another kid's shooter.

He liked to win shooters. "They're usually prettier than other marbles," he says. "Sometimes they're all chipped. That gives them character.

"You get a feeling for your shooter, like a pool shooter for his cue or a girl for her — " he groped for words — "her favorite bobbie pin or something. Her favorite boyfriend."

Thinking big, Yamamoto is planning a "grudge match" in about two weeks — himself against one of his customers at $5 a marble.

He has already noticed the Guinness Book of Records has nothing in it about marble games. So he's toying with the idea of making the marble tournament a regular thing, every three months or so.

And eventually, holding the world marbles tournament right there at 2223 First St.

EBMUD's comic look at drought

"We have tried to include the total environmental picture — energy, solid waste and so forth," he said.

Johnson said EBMUD representatives have been invited to present the Project WATER format to other water agencies this fall at the national convention being held in Anaheim by the American Water Works Association.

Talk on cancer and employment

SACRAMENTO — Job related cancer will be discussed this morning at the Concord Inn, in Concord starting at 9:15 a.m. when the Contra Costa area holds its ninth annual Industrial Safety Conference.

Registration begins at 8 a.m.

Of the 9,918 potential industrial users of 14 cancer causing chemicals statewide, 188 are believed to be located in Contra Costa County, according to the state health department.

Dr. Fred Ottoboni, chief of the State Health Department's Occupational Cancer Control Unit will deliver a speech and lead discussion this morning.

Ottoboni's presentation will come two days after an announcement by State Health and Welfare Secretary, Mario Obledo, that job related Cancer Prevention Guidelines have been mailed to 10,000 California employers. Those same employers are believed to be potential users of the 14 cancer causing chemicals regulated by the state.

As soon as regulations are set by the state regarding asbestos and vinyl chloride, letters will be sent to employers using them.

Last year, and Occupational Carcinogens Control Act was passed. Starting July 1, this law provides a $500 penalty for failure to report use of illegal substances. A $1000 fine will be levied for a serious violation of a safety standard. Repeated violations will incur a $5000 fine.

Little League round-up

Larson's two-hitter sparks LPA victory

Todd Larson struck out 14 batters and gave up just two hits as the Livermore Police Association blasted AM. Sports 10-1 in Livermore American senior division competition last night.

The winners belted 12 hits. Mike Hiles led the Association with three hits and two RBI's. Steve Baxter, Bob Magann and David Brown and Jerry Sandoval each had two hits.

Steve Matuska was the losing pitcher.

In another senior game Pizza Arcade topped Macy Movers 3-1.

In Western Division action the Angels clubbed the Orioles 9-6.

Greg Johnson had four hits and three RBI's for the Angels. Kevin Ryan added two hits and two RBI's for the winners.

Eric Patterson had three hits and one RBI for the losers. George Tennisen added two hits.

In a minor division contest Der Weinerschnitzel topped Livermore Saw and Mower, 8-4.

Damon Orth led the winners with two hits and Mike Finkes added one.

Bob Bishop had two hits and Tony Governor and Lawerence Waechtler each had one hit.

Olsen's Auto Repair belted 18 hits in a 16-8 victory over J. Sports Lettering in a farm division contest.

Rick Helton and Everett Guilloty each had three hits for the winners. Helton had two RBI's. Todd Hogan added a double and one RBI. Damon Bersie led the losers with two hits and one RBI.

Patrick Guillory was the winning pitcher and Kenny Gruiel took the loss. Hogan made an unassisted double play.

Granada

Despite getting just two hits the Yankees blasted the A's, 18-7 in Granada Minor Division Little League action.

Tim Corder and Jeff Swenson each had one hit for the winners. Corder added an RBI.

The Yankees committed four errors and the A's two.

In Major League action Granada Pharmacy topped Alden Lane Nursery 6-3.

Kevin Hall had two hits and one RBI for the victors. Ron Simmons added an RBI.

Eric Taylor had two hits to spark the winners. Billy Taylor added one hit and three RBI's. Greg Brown and Jim Wright each had two RBI's.

Jerry Joachin and Tom Digiallonardo had the losers' hits.

The A's scored twice in the fourth to edge the Cardinals, 11-10. Tim Mathews had two hits and two RBI's, Jim Perry rapped two singles, and Mike Rogers and John Daley each singled for the winners. John Earnshaw had two hits and an RBI, Gerald Inney doubled and Pete Saccullo singled for the Cards. The Cards stole three bases.

Ted Garibay ripped two hits and two RBI's to pace Lions Club Giants past the Astro Rental Pirates, 9-2. Forrest Lewis doubled and Darren Beach had an RBI single for the losers, while Tim Brechen singled in a run and Buz Slack had an RBI for the winners.

The Dodgers lambasted the Yankees, 12-0, behind the batting of Mark Azevedo and Mark Maupin, each of whom had a trio of hits and a pair of RBI's. Ricky Guerin singled twice while James Tarabini also singled for the winners. Rusty Steele tripled and J.R. McGuinnes and Keith Castro singled for the losers.

Despite four Cardinal runs in the final two innings, the Yankees held on to claim a 9-8 win over the Cards in Granada Farm League action.

The Yankees evened their record at 2-2 with a fine defensive effort and solid pitching. J. Earnshaw had a pair of doubles for the Cardinals.

Tim Brecheen drove in three runs with a double and a triple as the Giants handed the Dodgers a 6-3 setback. Sean Flanagan also had an RBI for the Giants.

Leading the Dodger attack were Dave Patterson who doubled in a run and Noel Cooley who went two-for-two at the plate. Mack Azevedo added the final Dodger run with one hit in two times at bat.

Livermore National

David Criss allowed only one hit as Lone Star smashed ADT Systems 20-1 in Livermore National Senior division action.

Besides Criss's pitching heroics Jerry Bacon was a star at the plate for the winners, belting two doubles and six RBI's. George Yawornisky added two hits and four RBI's. Robbie Bowers had two RBI's.

Rick Sandoval scored the lone run for the losers.

In a Minor Division game A&W Root Beer topped Family Tree Boutique 6-1.

In Farm Division action the Hansens shutout topped M.E. Callaghans 13-0.

Oliver hompson had two hits and a home run for the winners. Cory Williamson added a hit.

Kevin Reilley and Chris Dalen each had a hit for the losers.

In another Farm game United Califorina Brokers crushed Financial Savings 20-5.

Jeff Jones, Mike Janamillo and Steve Blair each had two RBI's for the winners.

Ken Gregory had three hits for the losers. Don Paynter added two double and an RBI.

Hanamillo was the winning pitcher.

Vince Farfan struck out three of the four batters he faced in the fifth inning as Kentucky Fried Chicken scored five times in the fifth to key a 17-16 win over Hansen's in Livermore National Little League play Saturday.

Darin Davis and John Baptista each had a trio of hits for the winners, while Cory Williamson doubled to drive in two runs and David Duncan and Todd Ballou singled for the losers.

Pleasanton National

Kerry Mueller pounded out three hits and Vincent Wesir added a pair of RBI as the Cubs edged the Dodgers 4-3 in a Pleasanton National Minor League contest.

In addition to his hitting, Mueller was credited with the pitching victory, with relief help from Larry Rogers. Rogers earned a save.

Four sixth inning runs provided the insurance for an 8-3 Reds victory over the Padres. The Reds were paced on offense by the two-for-four hitting and four RBI by Dave Carother. Both of Carother's hits were for extra bases, including a double and a round tripper over the left field fence. Mike Schoffstall pushed across two runs with as many hits for the Reds.

Seattle Slew another Secretariat

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Seattle Slew, the unbeaten favorite for the Kentucky Derby, has been compared to Secretariat, the super-colt turned-superstud who won racing's Triple Crown in 1973.

But Bob Gorham, vice president and resident manager of Churchill Downs, says he's hesitant about comparing the two.

Both may run fast, but like humans, horses have their own identities, their own personalities, Gorham says.

"Every horse, like every person, is different," Gorham said in an interview Thursday. "I don't think you can really compare the two physicially or in temperament."

But Seattle Slew, like Secretariat, "is a beautiful animal and loves to run."

Seattle Slew arrived Wednesday at Churchill Downs and was greeted by newsmen, photographers, and just plain people who wanted to catch a glimpse of the already-famous colt. Few did.

Gorham says he didn't even get a chance to say "hello" to the colt, but he planned to change that as soon as he could.

"I'm going to visit him if I can get away from my desk," he said.

Millions will see Seattle Slew on television if he runs in the May 7 Kentucky Derby as expected. But if you're one of the thousands who hope to see the race in person, you're out of luck unless you're a patron of Churchill Downs.

If you're not willing to pay scalpers' prices, the only seats available will be for the infield -- the area inside the track — or the grounds, where you'll be able to see the race on television monitors, Gorham said.

And even if you're willing to pay scalpers' prices, tickets for the race are hard to come by. Louisville's newspapers have been full of ads for weeks submitted by persons seeking good Derby tickets.

"We've got 42,000 seats, and all are assigned to patrons of Churchill Downs," he said. "On the 31st of January each year we mail them a bill, and they have until the 28th of February to mail money in. If they mail money in, we are sold out. If they do not, we cancel their tickets, and reassign them to 7,000 people asking for tickets."

But there are seldom cancellations, and patrons pass down their seats generation to generation.

The infield usually is packed with spectators, some of whom are lucky enough to get to a restraining fence to see the race. Thousands aren't so lucky. They hear it but don't see much of the race.

At the 100th Derby, 98,000 persons paid $10 for infield tickets. Usually, the number is around 60,000, and about 15,000 pay $15 to watch the television monitors on the grounds.

Last year's Derby was marred when someone through a smoke bomb onto the track during the race. Antibusing demonstrations had been threatened but none materialized. None have been threatened thus far for this year's Derby.

Livermore rolls over Mustangs

Knocking off Monte Vista 78-53, Livermore High's track team upped its mark to 5-1 Monday, causing a four-team logjam at the top of the East Bay Athletic League standings and setting up a very important meet this Thursday.

The Cowboys host Amador Valley Thursday, both teams boasting 5-1 marks while the other two teams with just one loss, San Ramon and Dublin square off at Dublin.

Against Monte Vista, Livermore's Dean Lindsey showed he intended to waste no time in breaking a record he had set just four days earlier. Lindsey went 43-8¾ in the triple jump to re-establish a school record.

As if that weren't enough, Lindsey won the 330 low hurdles with a time of 40.9 and took second place in the 120 yard high hurdles. In the pole vault, John Draper of Livermore took the honors with a mark of 12-6 while high jumper Robert Churchill could manage a leap of only 5-10 in the subpar conditions of the Monte Vista track.

Livermore's Mark Tewes, in the discus, posted a season high of 153-10, a hopeful sign for the Cowboys as they, along with three other teams, head down the stretch for the league title.

Libbers top Irbys'

Leon's Libbers took an 8-3 win over Irbys' Milkstore in Livermore Recreation women's softball B League action recently.

Jo Shafto and Martha Martano each had two hits for the winners. They also scored once apiece.

The winners had 10 hits to eight for Irby's.

In C League action Normandy Hair Design edged LLL 12-10 and Ron Mark's Insurance blasted the Lounge 17-1.

Kathy Parker blasted five hits to lead the winners. Ann DeKay added four hits and scored four times, including once in a seven-run second inning rally.

Sardines bring great results

Charlie Litz

Tony Oxsen talked his dad, Bob Oxsen, into going fishing with him last Friday, with excellent results. They fished the "Old River" downstream from Grant Line Canal.

Big chunks of sardines were the bait, reports Tony, and it wasn't long until he got a heavy strike. After about 20 minutes of scrapping, Tony beached a big striper.

"I could hardly believe my eyes," said Tony. It tipped the scales at a full forty pounds. Approximate measurements seemed to be about 36 inches long with a circumference of, well, Tony made a circle with his hands which was about 16 inches deep and 10 inches wide.

Some hefty fish!

A great time was had by all who attended the 31st Annual Barbecue at the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club. Although things were slow until about noon, because of the welcome showers, the rest of the day was busy.

Cowboys' Jones quits cage post

In a homecoming of sorts, John Jones, head basketball coach at Livermore High for the past eight years, will retire at the end of this year to take the coaching job at Lassen Junior College, located in Susanville.

Jones' first coaching job was at Dunsmuir High, just 80 miles from Susanville, and he also attended school in the area. Jones prepped at Anderson High and went on to Shasta JC and finally Humboldt State.

In eight years of coaching at Livermore, Jones led his team to the runner-up spot three times but never gained a league championship. Jones owns a 117-81 mark over-all for his tenure at Livermore, and his final campaign with the Cowboys may have been his finest.

Claiming just two returning experienced players, Jones guided Livermore to a strong second place finish in the East Bay Athletic League, behind powerful Amador. Jones cited plain hard work as a major reason behind this season's success.

"I worked the kids harder (this year) than any other team I've ever worked, as far as a conditioning and running program is concerned. It tells me that sometimes you'd be surprised what can be accomplished if you put in the extra time," Jones reasoned.

Jones' task at Lassen will be similar to this year's Livermore job. This year he took a team which was not looked on to go far and had great success, and the story of Lassen JC basketball runs along those lines also.

Lassen, which plays in the Golden Valley Conference, has never won more than 11 games in a season and perenially finishes around the bottom of the conference. Enrollment at Lassen is just 1,200 and the two-year institution is populated by the students of only four high schools.

In accepting the Lassen post, Jones replaces Richard Lamoureaux, who will now concentrate on being athletic director. Ironically, in his first job at Dunsmuir, one of Jones' rival mentors was Richard Lamoureaux of Enterprise High.

Some of the outstanding players which Jones has coached include Ted Wood, playing now at St. Mary's College, Ed St. Clair, Mike Fullmer, Rich Rowsey, Doug Morrison and Larry Carpenter. Stars from this year's Livermore squad included Tim Jenkins and Mark McCreary.

Raiders pick Davis

Lions pick Kane in draft

Former Amador Valley High and San Jose State State star running back Rick Kane was drafted by the Detroit Lions in the third round of the National Football League collegiate draft yesterday.

Kane, who graduated from Amador in 1972, broke the career rushing record at SJS this past season, despite playing just two years at the school.

Kane's teammate Wilson Faumuina, a former San Francisco prep star, was picked by Atlanta in the first round.

California's Ted Albrecht, an All-American offensive guard, was picked by the Chicago Bears, also in the first round.

The world champion Oakland Raiders picked defensive back Mike Davis of Colorado and running back Ted McKnight as their first draft picks.

The San Francisco 49ers, needing a receiver to take the place of injured Willie McGee, picked Eastern Kentucky's Elmo Boyd, a 5-11, speedster with 4.5 60 speed.

San Francisco also traded defensive lineman Bill Sandifer to Seattle for five-year NFL veteran Ed Bradley, a middle linebacker. The 49ers also picked Stan Black, a defensive back, in the fourth round.

The Raiders made a minor trade during the drafting, acquiring defensive back Cedrick Brown and a future draft pick from Tampa Bay in exchange for two future draft picks. Brown was drafted by the Raiders last year but waived before the season began.

The Raiders also signed free agent Jeff Winans, who played with them early last year as a defensive end. The former Southern Cal player, who went on to the New Orleans Saints in 1976, will be tried as offensive guard, Madden said.

In the first draft pick of the day Tampa Bay selected USC running back Ricky Bell. Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh was taken by Dallas after Seattle traded its choice to the Cowboys.

Amador catcher Mike Hoff holds ball while eyeing action against Wolves.

Houston outduels Wicks in SR win

Guy Houston outdueled Amador Valley High School ace Rob Wicks with a two-hitter and his team mates came up with a pair of unearned runs as the San Ramon Wolves stayed high atop the East Bay Athletic League standings with a 2-1 win yesterday in Pleasanton.

Houston walked only one and struck out nine while, uncharacteristicly, Wicks walked four, two less than he had in 35 previous EBAL innings, and struck out nine.

Houston's victory left him with a prfect 4-0 league mark while Wicks fell to 1-4, thanks in part to an upheld protest of a game with Dublin announced earlier in the day that took aware a win for the time being.

Neither team could score an earned run as a bases - empty, two-out rally by the Wolves in the m fourth inning gave th both runs and the margin of victory.

Mitch Rascano, who'll pitch Thursday against Granada, came up in the designated hitter's slot with two away and hit a tricky bouncer to short. Amador's Bill Bevilacqua bobbled the ball, insuring that Rascano would reach first; but Bevilacqua threw anyway and threw it away for a double error.

John Arnaudon followed with a single to the whole at short that moved Rascano to third. With Tim Rosgen at the plate, Wicks faked to first without coming off the rubber and a balk was called, scoring Rascano.

Rosgen eventually coaxed one of those hard - to - come - by walks out of Wicks and Charlie Brice followed with a run-scoring single that curled around third base.

The Dons' own, unearned, run came in the bottom half of the frame.

Second baseman Kurt Hall timed a Houston curveball and slammed it over shortstop. Mike Connolly moved him to second with a sacrifice bunt — the first of two for Connolly — out in front of the plate.

On a full-count pitch to Chris DePrater, Hall took off for third as DePrater struck out and scored when Ric Hanson made a rare throwing error and tossed the ball into left field.

The Dons had a couple of other scoring opportunities, but couldn't capitalize.

In the second, Wicks led off with a fly-ball triple to center that Greg Bishop — playing the position because of muscle spasms that have kept Britt Binns out of the line-up — didn't track down too quickly.

But AV coach Don Bush, stationed at third, sent Wicks home and he was cut down, Bishop to Rosgen to Hansen.

In the sixth, Amador got runners to second and third thanks to a walk to Bevilacqua, the fact that Hall was hit by a Houston breaking pitch and Connolly's second sacrifice.

But, DePrater grounded out to short and the second bang-bang play in a row at first and Houston stifled his neighbors' — his family lives in Pleasanton — fourth, fifth and sixth hitters to tie up the win in the seventh.

San Ramon meets Granada in Danville Thursday in what could be the last chance for a team to help itself in the uphill chase after the Wolves. The date was moved up to avoid conflict with the dates of the Matador players, whose Senior Ball is Friday night.

Davis blast gives Matadors victory

No one really wanted to win it, but one man sure didn't want to lose his team's game with Livermore High yesterday.

Mark Davis put an end to a comedy of errors at Granada High by smacking a solid bases - loaded double in the bottom of the sixth inning, clearing the bags, as Granada pulled out an 8-5 win over Livermore in East Bay Athletic Leagu baseball play.

The win sets up a final chance for the Mats to make a noise in the heretofor quiet EBAL season when they meet league - leading San Ramon, whom they trail by 1½ games, tomorrow in Danville.

Prior to Davis' shot down the right field line, the Mats had erased a 5-2 Livermore lead with a strange combination of assets over the preceding two innings: four errors, three walks, a hit batsman, a balk, and an infield roller by Rushing that was ruled a base hit after being bobbled by shortstop Cary Dean.

Rushing's dribbler brought home Mike Peila to make it 5-3, who had advanced to third after consecutive errors by the 'Poke infield. Jaryl Hudson, a benefactor of one of those miscues, went to third on the play and scored on a scarifice fly by the EBAL's leading RBI-man and winning pitcher, Kevin Gosney.

Trailing 5-4 entring the sixth, the Mats drew two walks off of losing hurlr Jff Benton, prompting 'Poke coach Kevin Drake to pull his premier pitcher and put in little-used reliever Darryl Hanson.

Hanson's fast ball was whipping nicely, but couldn't find the plate, walking Peila to load the bases and hitting Hodson on the leg to force in the tying run at 5-5. Davis' big rap put the game on ice.

Gosney relivd starter Mark Davis, who uffered from inadequate defense and a tiny dose of wildnes, and pitched three inning of shutout ball to gain his third victory in five decisions. Benton is now 4-3.

After Tim Shatswll's two-run first-inning single gave the Mats a 2-0 led, the Cowboys rallied for five unearned runs on the fourth to take a 5-2 lead.

Davis, who began th game by working out of a ba-loadd, no-out threat in the first inning, couldn't come through this time as the visitors loaded the bags again on two infield errors and a single by Bob Tarte. Dave Dearborn's walk forced in one run, John Bachleda's two-out single plated another pair while Cary Dean rapped a two-run single to complete the scoring.

The Matadors now stand at 8-3 in EBAL play, while the 'Pokes slipped to 6-5.

Gael baseball protest upheld

Rob Wicks and his Amador Valley High School teammates have had to struggle this season after joining another disappointing team, California, as pre-season East Bay Athletic League favorites.

Wicks and the Dons got more bad news away from the diamond yesterday.

The EBAL has upheld a protest by Dublin coach Tom Mullican of last Tuesday's 4-2 Don victory, a win that was Wicks second in five decisions.

In the fifth inning of that game, Mullican replaced Dan Pearson with Fred Tunnicliff at first base. But, said the umpires, Mullican did not announce the substitution, so Tunnicliff was out the first time he appeared at bat.

So, Wicks fine 15 strikeout performance will be put to a test May 17 when the game will be replayed, starting with the top of the sixth inning with the score, 4-1, Amador.

Mac's legs tired, but still kicking

SAN FRANCISCO — The legs that have carried Willie McCovey around the basepaths for the circuit 170 times in his major league career are now showing the toll that 19 years in the National League have taken on them.

Surgical scars on his knees gave mute testimony to the ravages of time last Wednesday night as McCovey sat in front of his locker following the Giants' 3-2 win over the Houston Astros.

For Number 11, this season marks the end of an odysey that took him from the Giants to the San Diego Padres (via trade) in 1971 and to the Oakland A's at the end of last season.

AND THE GIANT club to which he returns this year has the potential to make things interesting for its NL Western Division competitors, McCovey thinks.

"It's still early," Mac said as he wound down from the toils of the evening. "It's a good ball club. We're still not playing up to our potential. We did play some pretty good ball on the road, I realize that. We were scoring some runs, but we're still better than that.

"I'm just hoping this victory tonight — coming back like we did — might wake us up and get us to going like I know we can. It is a good ball club, and we're going to win a lot of games."

As to how he feels so far this season, McCovey said, "I've never felt better."

C.C. awesome as Cal romps

Chuck Cary was at his finest yesterday as he threw a two-hitter and fanned 14 Foothill batters as California took a decisive 15-0 victory over the hosting Falcons in an East Bay Athletic League game.

Only two singles by Chris Neves, one a questionable liner on the left field foul line in the second inning, marred Chuck's performance.

Chuck also led the Grizzly batters with three hits and had two RBI's.

It was a good day for the Cary family as shortstop Bret had two hits, scored twice and had two RBI's.

The Grizzlies jumped on Falcon starter Rick Rosenbach for one run in the opening stanza and four more in the second to set the stage for the contest.

Tyler Laurie led off the first inning with a single. After Dan Nelson grounded out Bret singled and Laurie scored as Falcon centerfielder Bob Bird bobbled the ball.

The Grizzlies got their four runs in the second while getting just two hits. Three walks and a hit batsman aided the rally.

California struck for two more runs in the fourth, five in the fifth and three in the seventh to complete the rout.

Leading 7-0 entering the fifth frame, the Grizzlies sent 10 batters to the plate despite picking up just four hits. Three walks scored runs for California.

The final Grizzly runs came on singles by Tracy Nodlinski, Doug Smith and Pat Fahey plus an error.

Nodlinski was also a potent force at the plate for California. The husky first baseman scored twice, had two hits and had two RBI's. Mike Barrow and Laurie also had two hits apiece for the winners.

Chuck Cary only walked two batters in his stint. Rosenbach went 3⅓ innings and walked six batters while giving up eight hits. Sam Sisneroz relieved him and gave up nine. Sisneroz was effective in the strike-out department, fanning four batters in his effort.

California is now 4-6 and the Falcons are 1-10.

Bald and fast

Shave-headed Glen McFarlane celebrates win in 50-yard freestyle last week against Amador Valley. Despite his win the Cowboys lost to the Dons. Today's East Bay Athletic League schedule has San Ramon and Amador Valley fighting for the loop lead in the key meet of the day in Pleasanton. Other meets see Livermore meeting host California and Dublin at Granada.

LA favored

Warriors' last stand

LOS ANGELES — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and his Los Angeles Lakers carry the home court advantage to its ultimate test Wednesday night when they battle the Golden Gate Warriors in their deciding playoff game.

The National Basketball Association quarterfinals stand 3-3 in games with the Lakers winning their three at the Forum and Golden State winning all of theirs at home in Oakland.

"It's so boggling no one can figure it out," declared the Warriors' Jamaal Wilkes of his team's inability to win at the Forum where they've lost their last seven outings. It's not a matter of confidence. We've played tough arenas on the road before . . . we just start fidgeting and we can't get our shots."

Coach Al Attles of Golden State declared, "I just hope the law of averages catches up with us and we finally win one. Our guys know what they have to do."

Attles made a strategic move in the series when during game No. 3 he switched Wilkes into guarding the Lakers' Cazzie Russell. Rick Barry had been doing the guarding and Attles felt he and the Laker forward were nullifying each other. The move has proved beneficial to the Warriors yet Russell says:

"I'm thinking about a few things I want to do, but I don't want to talk about it now. I want to spring it on them."

It could be that Russell will do more driving toward the basket just as he did at times during Sunday's 115-106 loss in Oakland.

However, the Lakers' hopes of reaching the semi-finals against Portland rest primarily with their 7-foot 2 all-star Abdul-Jabbar.

"I know we can win," commented Abdul-Jabbar. He has been over 40 points four times in the current series with a high of 45 in his last outing at the Forum. The Lakers have won their last 13 games on that home court and 40 out of 44 since the season began.

For the Warriors to win, both Barry and Wilkes must keep up their scoring and perhaps get some help from Phil Smith who has been held down with outstanding guarding by the Lakers' Don Chaney.

Unfortunately for the Warriors, this best-of-seven series won't return again to Oakland where they have beaten the Lakers 16 straight including five this year.

But Wednesday night's winner will be the home club against Portland on Friday and Sunday in the first two games of the semi-finals.

"When the Lakers beat us at the Forum, it's like a velvet hammer,"commented Wilkes, the former UCLA All-American.. "They beat us, but not badly. The teams seem to play with more confidence when they're at home."

Ramsey spent last weekend fishing at Mammoth Pool Reservoir. They made camp and caught enough fish for supper Friday evening.

Saturday the fishing was so good they all had limits by 10 o'clock. Gene reports there was snow, hail, rain, and quite a bit of wind during the day.

Sunday was another good day — they all got limits early in the day and came home. The trout they caught were all between 11 and 13 inches. They report catches of rainbows, brookies, and German brown. Bait used was small night crawlers.

Here is a real interesting article from the Department of Fish and Game (DFG). It just might help you on your next fishing trip, so why not try it? Sounds good to me.

The DFG is pulling out all stops to provide prompt up - to - the - minute information on fishing opportunites throughout the state, they reminded anglers recently.

Latest wrinkle in the program of special services for fishermen concerned over dry-year conditions is a tape - recorded message from a Sacramento telephone number on the situation in the department's 17-county Region 2.

The taped message available at (916) 452-3564 includes a listing of catchable trout plants for the week, open waters and water and fishing conditions. The message is retaped every Monday morning.

In addition to the taped message, the regional office on the campus of Sacramento State University answers questions from callers at (916) 445-0990.

Also available is current information compiled from fishing conditions reported by biologists and wardens in the field.

of waters no longer fishable, waters about to be fished out, execeptionally productive waters and access conditions.

The DFG's Region 3 office in Yountville, Napa County, provides information on fish plants and fishing opportunities and access for waters throughout the 15 central coast counties. The telephone number is (707) 944-2443.

The regional office with responsibility for the San Joaquin Valley and the central and southern Sierra is Region 4 in Fresno. Callers to (209) 222-3761 receive information on the current status of waters and access including that for major reservoirs.

Most callers there are interested in the high country lakes for which conditions have not changed appreciably.

MV routs Gaels, stays near SR

Steve Jayko might not be the greatest pitcher, but his performance yesterday puts Monte Vista right back where they belong.

"Steve was a little nervous at the beginning, but once he started getting his curve over he was hard to beat," explained Mustangs' coach Rich Jones after Jayko and Monte Vista mowed down Dublin, 7-1, in East Bay Athletic league baseball yesterday.

"Hopefully we're on the right track now," offered Jones. "We'd rather be a little closer."

The score wasn't close yesterday. In fact, it was a joke. Especially after the second inning.

Monte Vista broke loose for two runs in the second inning, two in the third and two more in the fourth enroute to a 6-0 advantage and their eighth EBAL win against three losses.

Jayko, menawhile, did the rest. The senior right - hander pitched seven strong innings, yielding only five hits and giving up a run as late as the fifth inning. Jayko struck out six but walked five, however.

Jayko's appearance capably supported by 11 Mustang hits, including two by Ken Krey, Kevin Jones and Bill Howard — the meat of the Mustangs' lineup. Five other players had one hit each.

MV pounded Gael starter Gary Rader for four hits in the second inning enroute to scoring only a pair of runs.

A single, double, and two more singles — three hits in a row — by MV settled the match. And quieted the Gael coaching staff who elected to place the game under protest over a disputed interference pitch in the first inning. They changed their minds an inning later — and the game went on.

In Monte Vista's favor, of course. Greg Bisbee pulled a double down the left field line in the second inning scoring John Peters from second base, who previously reached on a base hit. Howard drove home Bisbee with a sharp single to left field.

Jones and Cockerton, who both reached on back to back doubles in the third inning, came home on a sacrifice bunt by Peters and a base hit to left field by Tony Adams.

Howard, who reached on a single to left to open the fourth, rode home on an infield error for 5-0. Jones drove in Jayko, who reached on a walk, with a strong single to center field — for 6-0.

Jayko, meanwhile, left nine Dublin base runners stranded, and survived a scary first inning.

With the bases loaded and only one out, Bob Richardson grounded to third baseman Ted Helgans who turned the ball into a double play.

Monte Vista, on the other hand, left eight runners on base, including two in the second and two in the sixth innings.

MV gains golf title

Racking up its 12th consecutive match victory, the Monte Vista golf team captured the East Bay Athletic League title by whipping Dublin 202-223.

The champs were led by medalist Ray Bluth, who carded a 37 and Dave Howe, with a 39. Medalist for the Gaels was Rusty Allan, 41, and Monte Vista's Scott Watkins and Dave Najarian each had a 41.

In another match, Livermore's Mike Silva recorded an eagle as the Cowboys stampeded California 199-239.

Gladiators win GGC golf title

Chabot College's golf team won the Golden Gate Conference title Monday, scoring 767 points to 778 for runner-up San Jose at Castlewood Country Club.

College of San Mateo was third with 784 and Diablo Valley and Foothill tied for fourth with 795. De Anza was sixth with 806, West Valley seventh with 809, San Francisco eighth with 880 and Laney last with 956.

Mitch Thomas of San Jose won first place in the individual competition, beating Chabot's Steve Gazabeo on the third hole of an extra playoff. Both players had 149s entering the playoff. Tom Cole of Chabot tied for fourth with Randy Lentz of DeAnza, both players scoring 153s.

inside the arts

Strolling musicians

The irresistible 'Illusions' — Shirley Rogers, Joann Tucker, Karen Johnson and accompanist Bill Kauzlarich — will entertain art lovers as they stroll down the shady lane at the Concannon Vineyard in Livermore past craft booths, art demonstrations and wine-tasting tables during the popular Art-in-the-Vineyard show coming Sunday, May 29. The event, expected to draw crowds from throughout the Bay Area from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., is in its fifth year. Sponsor is the Livermore Art Association, and chairman is Julie Kavanaugh.

PAL invites public to pitch in

A wide variety of art artworks will be on display in the Pleasanton Art League's annual spring show, to be held at the Cultural Arts Center Saturday, May 14 and Sunday, May 15.

Ceramicist Cele Albanese will be among the many artists expected to enter the show before Wednesday, May 11, with entry fees set at $2.50 for PAL members and $3.50 for non-members. Two entries per artist will be accepted, with judging by Franklin Grant, Dan Peterson and Selma Grossman taking place Friday, May 13.

The open show's categories include watercolors, pastels and graphics, textiles, sculpture, pottery, jewelry, mixed media and acrylics.

A gala champagne reception will open the art show Friday, May 13 at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public.

In conjunction with the art show is the Pleasanton Art League's weekend of art demonstrations, including candle making, crafts and food booths. Planned for the spacious greens of Amador Park, next to the Cultural Arts Center, the Heritage Art Festival will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Maid of Pleasanton contestants Dawn Perry, Sandy Geck and Linda Polin will serve as hostesses together with PAL members Jan Feverly, Bondi Abraham, Evelyn Henkel and Carol Waugh.

Spaces are still available for those interested in operating an arts and crafts booth, or a food booth. For more information call Wilma Stout at 846-8715. Applications are also available at Warren Wade's Art Etc., Crafty Lady, Havalaar Galleries, the Cultural Arts Center, Lynch Art and Frame or the Chamber of Commerce in Pleasanton. Dublin's Mary D's or the Crafty Fox also have forms, along with the Way Up Gallery in Livermore.

Anyone interested in participating in the festival's demonstrations, which will feature everything from lace making to tatting and saw sharpening, may contact Ms. Stout.

Proceeds from the event will go towards art scholarships for valley students and equipment for the Cultural Arts Center. The festival is co-sponsored by the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce and the Dept. of Human Resources.

Cele Albanese first became interested in ceramics five years ago, and has now opened a small gift shop in her home.

Student theatrical productions are in blossom throughout the Valley with some very ambitious offerings slated to open in the next couple of weeks.

Amador Creative Theatre, with ex-Amador and now San Francisco State student Jerry Carlin directing, will do Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" May 18, 19 and 20 at the Amador Valley High School auditorium.

Laura Collins, student director for the production, writes that Carlin's activities have always centered around the theater and he was active in drama while at Amador. He later studied dramatics at a Sacramento junior college and, while in Sacramento, appeared in "Bell, Book and Candle" and "Charley's Aunt."

Adele Denny, drama instructor at Amador, is producing the classic by Arthur Miller and Gary Dickenson, another Amador alum, is designing the set.

Also coming up this month are "The Fantastiks," to be done by a Foothill High School drama group; "The Brides of March," at Dublin High, and "Any Number Can Play," a mystery/ comedy being directed by Kay Johnson at Pleasanton School. The latter will play May 12 and 13 at Pleasanton School's Little Theater with curtain at 7:30 both nights.

While in Los Angeles last week, we viewed the latest Center Theatre Group "experimental" staging— "Angel City."

Center Theatre Group, directed by Gordon Davidson, has been in residence at the Mark Taper Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center for nearly a decade.

Also viewed was "Same Time, Next Year," an overwhelming hit wherever it has played and no less so as done by Carol Burnett and Dick Van Dyke at the Huntington Hartford in Hollywood.

We also noticed promo signs for what certainly will be a motion picture blockbuster— "The Greatest," the life story and starring — you guessed it — Muhammad Ali.

By Pat Kennedy

It's not that you don't enjoy playing around once in awhile. It's just that you don't want everybody to KNOW you play around...

Some things never change. That's why the 17th - century English play, "The Country Wife" by William Wycherley, is as uproarious now as it was when it first hit the stage.

Berkeley Repertory Theatre offers a deliciously clever version of the old comedy (through May 29) directed by Michael Addison and starring Alice Rorvik as the toothsome and incredibly dizzy Mrs. Margery Pinchwife.

Getting a little nooky on the side is everyone's concern in this play, and Mr. Horner (Rick Casorla) figures out a clever way to do it.

Overnight, husbands are begging him to escort their wives around, because they figure he's "safe" now. Of course the ladies quickly find out differently, much to their delight.

It takes Horner the entire two acts to get next to Margery because Mr. Pinchwife (Robert Haswell) doesn't buy the castration story. Nearly everybody is satisfied in the end, but not before some wild mistaken identities and close calls bring the audience to an overwrought condition.

For the costumes alone, this production is worth seeing. Designer Leslie Skannal allegedly had a $175 budget with which to dress up 15 people in brocades and buckles, wigs and swords.

Her crowning achievement was Mr. Sparkish, an obnoxious little loser decked out in Goodwill pumps painted white, tights, lace, a platinum wig and billowing pants and jacket of gold brocade.

Little orange bows in his hair, lipstick and blue eyeshadow, and pink plastic rosettes on the shoes complete his outrageous rig.

The loudmouth Sparkish (Dale Elliott) loses his lady, Miss Alithea (daintily played by Linda Lee Johnson) to yet another fop in drag, Mr. Harcourt (Paul Laramore) — a redhead in blue brocades.

In contrast, the two married men, Sir Jasper Fidget (Rick Johnson) and Mr. Pinchwife, wear more dignified clothes and no makeup to come across sober and slightly syphilitic.

Let it go to your head!

"Hats Off!" an exhibition of 20th Century American headgear, will be on view at the Oakland Museum's special gallery May 6 through July 7. The exhibition features hats of many different kinds, including hats for work, play, fashion, fads and safety.

In conjunction with the exhibit, a costume symposium designed for individuals who have had professional experience with costume is planned May 19-21. Discussion, workshop and demonstrations will address problems in collecting, cataloging, conserving and displaying costume material. For information call 273-3842.

The museum is at 1000 Oak St., one block from the Lake Merritt BART.

Sharon and Bob Gardner

LAA Gallery

May's feature is couple

Bob and Sharon Gardner will be the featured artists at the Livermore Art Association Gallery during the month of May, and welcome the public to an informal reception at the gallery in Livermore's Carnegie Building Saturday, May 7. The artists will appear in person from 1 to 4 p.m. at their exhibit of pottery and handweaving.

Bob Gardner began as a ceramicist 15 years ago, and has studied with Eunice Prieto and Gary Dutton of Walnut Creek. He is considered one of the most outstanding potters in the valley, his work having appeared in many local art shows.

Because he works full-time as a technical supervisor for E.G. & G., Inc., of San Ramon, he has placed his emphasis on quality rather than quantity of work. All the items he displays at the gallery are new, and utilitarian as well as decorative.

Sharon began weaving seven years ago with Wilma Myers of Livermore, and has since studied with Ina Lefter of Livermore and Hillary Chetwind of England. She has attended workshops with Gloria Koehler, and a recent workshop on kasuri.

An active member of the Wayside Spinners and Weavers, Sharon is currently incorporating natural accessories such as dried flowers into her wall-hangings. The exhibit will also include a collection of handwoven pillows by Sharon.

The Gardners are parents of two boys, ages 13 and 10. Both belong to three folk dance groups. Bob enjoys organic gardening and bonsai, while Sharon is current editor of the Livermore Art Association's newsletter, "The Monochrome." She also does the bookkeeping for the LAA Gallery.

The gallery is open daily from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Third and K Streets in Livermore. Admission is free and items on display are offered for sale.

LAA hosts Longbotham

The emphasis will be on paintings for interior design when Watercolorist Dolores Longbotham addresses the Livermore Art Association Wednesday, May 11 at the Livermore Recreation Center. The public is welcome to the 7:30 p.m. program.

Longbotham manages the gallery at Stanislaus State University, and recently judged artwork at the Merced County Fair. Her private studio is in Modesto.

She was educated at the University of the Pacific and the California College of Arts and Crafts, and studied with Dan Petersen, George Post, Robert Wood and Bill Zacha.

Know about this auction, Iran the largest producers of hand woven carpets and rugs, has been a backward, slow moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the event of industry oil and free education it zoomed to the 20th Century. As a result the children are the majority of the weavers were lured away from the ancient art of weaving. In our opinion this great art will soon be lost and so scarce that todays European collectors and dealers are rushing to America to collect these beautiful carpets.

Master dance classes set

Continuing their series of master classes in dance, the San Ramon Valley Dance Academy has invited Dolores Terry to teach two classes in modern jazz dance Sunday, May 15 from 1 to 2 p.m. and 2 to 3 p.m.

Ms. Terry has been a top dancer at the Stardust, Dunes and Tropicana Hotels in Las Vegas and has taught dance teachers throughout the country. A native of Los Angeles, Ms. Terry is the associate director of the Dupree Dance Academy in that city.

An innovative jazz dancer, Ms. Terry's style and technique encompass many aspects.

The classe are open to intermediate and advanced dance students, with the fee for both classes set at $8.50. The fee for the technique (1 to 2 p.m.) or the dance class only (2 to 3 p.m.) is $6.

For more information or registration call 846-3726 or 837-4656.

Valley art in Fremont

Four valley artists are represented in the Society of Western Artists Show, now on exhibit at Northern California Savings, 39039 Paseo Padre Parkway in Fremont.

Included in the fourth annual show are pen-and-ink graphics by Pleasanton resident Terri Bunce, and watercolors by Livermore artists Don Larsen, Muriel Doggett and Frances Callaghan.

The show, which will be open to the public through Saturday, May 21, includes the work of 77 members of the Society, including acrylics, pastels and oils. Jurors for the show were Francis Coan, Marjorie Close and Larry Steelman.

Art show, group fun planned just for kids

Budding young artists, from tot to teen, are invited to show off their best piece of art work at the Youth Art Show sponsored by the Pleasanton Art League May 14 and 15 at the recreation center in Amador Valley Community Park.

The show runs in conjunction with the Pleasanton Heritage Festival. Activities for youth at the recreation center include group participation in a glue-in, paint-in, and the "fibre environment" — a five-foot cube filled with knots and weaving.

Young Gary Schwaegerle will demonstrate the art of Indian sand painting Sunday between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Amador High School students Kori Neilsen, Colleen Mulhearn and Kim Johnson will adorn young faces with elaborate make-up under the direction of Helene Allin.

Youth, from pre-school through high school age, living within Pleasanton city limits, are eligible to enter one work of art. Entries will be received Wednesday, May 11 between 4 and 7 p.m. at the recreation center on Black Avenue.

Hawaii Week

Merchants Chuck Dunn of Dunn Chevrolet (left) and Dick Fitch of Burton's Shoes, discuss the current Livermore Hawaii Week while Burton's employe Connie Eason drops her entry blank in the box, hoping for a trip to Hawaii. The promotion, which started Sunday and runs through May 16 will result in a trip to Hawaii for two shoppers and another trip for two employes or merchants. Other prizes include $100 gift certificates at participating merchants. No purchase is necessary to enter the contest. Drawing will be held May 19 at the Chamber of Commerce office. All coupons must be deposited by 5 p.m., May 16.

Recruits sought for summer job program

LIVERMORE — The 1977 summer jobs for teens program sponsored jointly by the state Employment Development Department (EDD), city and school district will begin to recruit youngsters later this month.

An EDD representative will be at the Livermore High School Career Center in the library, Thursday, May 19, and at the Granada High School Career Center, Wednesday, May 18. At that time applications for employment will be available and employment opportunity questions will be answered.

Businesses and residents who have jobs to offer and work to be done are encouraged to call local EDD office (455-6422) to be listed as prospective employers.

Either part-time or full-time employment is desired. Examples of possible jobs young people could do include household work, restaurant work, cleaning, painting, ranch labor, yard work, babysitting, moving household items, pet - sitting, busboy or girl, baggers, nursery worker, mother's helper, window washing, lawn mowing, service station attendant (16 years or older), clerical help, labor, convalescent home help, pool cleaning and sales clerk.

Although teenagers are eager to be gainfully employed, earning money and providing a service, there are also many opportunities to do volunteer work with some 80 Valley agencies serving the human needs of all citizens.

Volunteer work offers important experience in many areas where paid employment is not available. It also provides the participant with valuable future employment references.

Phoebe Baxter of the Volunteer Bureau (462-3570) has been working with local high schools to recruit youth to fill the numerous volunteer opportunities available in the Valley.

Band to play for Tillis

LIVERMORE — With an eye towards Nashville, Ron Dunivan and the Country Travelers is a local singing group preparing for its participation in the May 22 Mel Tillis concert at Livermore Stadium.

Dunivan, the lead singer and rhythm guitarist from Livermore, organized the group three months ago. He has worked with bass singer and vocal lead Jose Zavala of Hayward for 15 years, but recently added Steve and Mike Breshears of Livermore to the act.

Steve sings and plays guitar, while brother Mike hits the drums while singing.

The group plans a lot of traveling in the near future as a result of efforts by midwest booking and promotion manager Lela Peterson of Missouri.

Dunivan recorded two 45 discs with a Nashville group last October, including three songs he wrote and Zavala arranged. The records were released in December on the Candle label.

Having played at various local night spots, such as Holiday Inn, Livermore; Howard Johnsons, Dublin; Matador Lounge, Livermore; Burning Embers, Livermore; weddings and parties, Ron is preparing his group for more bookings.

The group is one of four local acts to precede Mel Tillis when the Livermore Rotary Club holds its benefit concert to raise money for stadium lights.

Cyndee Paulson— subject was roses

Cyndee Paulson

Cyndee is one of the local entertainers who will precede Mel Tillis at the May 22 Rotary benefit at Livermore Stadium.

From the time she moved to the family ranch on Tesla Road at age seven and becoming involved with horses and rodeos, Cyndee's interest and love for country western music mushroomed.

With Loretta Lynn as her idol, the inspired local lady started in a band at age 13. Working with Al Quaid, a good friend who "spent a lot of hours working with me and practicing getting songs down, learning my keys, etc.," Cyndee kept practicing singing and playing her guitar as much as six or eight hours a day.

She has sung at local talent contests, winning prizes at the Carriage House, Sam's Cowtown, and South 40.

Three years ago she won a recording contract through the 40 Grand Club in Sacramento and was on Channel 40 TV five times.

She has also sung at the local Holiday Inn as a guest with the Hansen Brothers.

Sacramento Tomato Juice. And Tomato Plus Vegetable Cocktail.
Sacramento, the tomato juice that's so smooth, so rich, and so thick, it plops when you pour it. It's made by our special process from lush, ripe, Sacramento Valley tomatoes.
And, for something different in a vegetable cocktail, try Sacramento Tomato Plus. It's spiked with the tangy taste of onion, celery and chili peppers. Plus what we think is the wildest blend of seasonings that ever went into a vegetable cocktail.
So thick and rich they plop when they pour.

It is open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday it is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 5 p.m. The phone number is 828-1810.

Doctors eye new officers

New officers of the Alameda/Contra Costa Optometric Society, headed by Weylin Eng, Oakland optometrist, officially assumed their new duties for the year ahead at the society's annual installation dinner recently.

Dr. Eng, who has offices in El Sobrante and Oakland, succeeds Dr. Richard Allphin of Oakland as president. The new president - elect for the two - county group will be Burnell Raulino, O.D., of San Ramon.

Director of public information, Dr. Gloria Waite, who practices and resides in Richmond, joins directors Dr. Clark Abramson of Livermore (professional affairs), Dr. Milt Levin of Dublin (education and research), Dr. Ted Christiansen of Berkeley (public health) and directors at large, Dr. Mark Fujikawa of Berkeley and Dr. Leon Baron of Concord on the executive board.

Bulletin editor is Stu Heller, O.D. of Danville.

Rose Raulino of San Ramon was installed as president-elect and Tilly Liebel was named publicity director for the group.

Wherefore art thou, Romeo?

Romeo's Big Meal, a sandwich shop in the Mission Plaza, 1991 Santa Rita Road, celebrated its grand opening recently. On hand were manager Becki Tracy, owner Roger Reinke, Maid of Pleasanton Julie Hemming, owner Gregg Paxton, Chamber of Commerce President Bill Hirst, and Mayor Robert Philcox. The shop will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. All sandwiches are made to order on handmade French bread. Beer and wine also are served and all menu items may be taken out.

Film Depicts Deadly Race

Peter Fonda and Warren Oates star in "Race With the Devil," an action thriller laced with satanism, to be presented for the first time on television, on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Wednesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Also starring are Lara Parker and Loretta Swit (who plays "Hot Lips" Houlihan on the series "MASH").

Two vacationing couples from the city are headed cross - country in a motor home bound for the ski slopes of Colorado. In a campground one night, the foursome inadvertently witness a coven of witches performing a bloody human sacrifice on a deserted hill.

Frightened out of their wits when they are spotted by the satanists, the couples dash for the nearest town to report the murder. Reassured by the local sheriff that he will handle the matter, they continue their journey.

But the satanists, like the hounds of hell, have begun a deadly pursuit of the terrified couples, bent on silencing them forever.

Nixon won't watch the Frost interview

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television audience watching the first post - resignation interview of Richard M. Nixon about Watergate probably won't include the former president.

"His practice in the past has been not to watch himself (on television)," Nixon's top aide said Tuesday in San Clemente, Calif.

"After all," continued the aide, Col. Jack Brennan, "he did this taping for 28¾ hours. He knows what he said."

Others who know what Nixon said predict a dramatic show Wednesday night.

"In the early part of the program, his (Watergate) defense was shattered and the interesting part follows from there," said James Reston Jr., who researched the Watergate portion for interviewer David Frost.

"I believe viewers will feel that this confrontation tests the Nixon accounting of Watergate in the way and with the intensity that it should be tested," said Frost, a British television personality.

Frost reportedly paid Nixon $600,000 and promised a percentage of the profits. The Watergate interview, first of four programs to be shown in succeeding weeks, will go on the air at 7:30 p.m. EDT over most of the stations that agreed to carry it.

The 155 stations that will carry the programs are doing so on the barter system: Frost will get $125,000 for each of five minutes of national advertisements. The stations can pocket the revenue they get from selling seven minutes of commercials locally.

Mickey Johnson, president of Syndicast Services, Inc., which distributed the programs in the United States, said all five commercial minutes are sold for Wednesday's show, but one minute of advertising time still is unsold in each of the other three programs.

Those programs deal with foreign and domestic affairs, including the Vietnam war and the dissent it brought, and the fourth show is on Nixon's final days in the White House.

Frost gained massive advance publicity this week when previously unpublished transcripts of recordings from the secret White House taping system were disclosed.

Nixon strenuously objected to a story Sunday in The Washington Post and has demanded a retraction. Executive Editor Benjamin Bradlee said the Post stands by its story.

The newspaper story focused on a reference to "hush money" in the transcript of a conversation Nixon had with his aide, Charles W. Colson, on Jan. 8, 1973. It said the transcript showed "Nixon was keenly aware that these payments were central to the cover-up."

Nixon's lawyers maintain the quotation is in an early transcript marked "Final ... of reduced audibility" and that a corrected version later did not contain the hush money reference and, indeed, did not involve any talk about Watergate.

Part of the Jan. 8 conversation was played for the jury in the Watergate coverup trial of Nixon's aides, but the portion in question was not.

The transcript makes finding the context difficult. The portion referred to in the Post story said:

President: (Unintelligible) God damn hush money, uh, how are we going to (unintelligible). How do we get this stuff (unintelligible) with Kennedy, when Kennedy said (unintelligible).

Colson: The point is that the only way that those guys (unintelligible) they really (unintelligible) five years (unintelligible).

Bailey will graduate from Dublin High School in June and leave for six weeks of Air Force basic training in September.

He will enter the Air Force Police Science School upon completion of basic training.

LIVERMORE — Navy Apprentice Tim L. Mast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Mast of Sundance Drive, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center at San Diego.

He joined the Navy in August, 1977.

The patient's rights

SAN RAMON — Consumerism is creeping into medicine — traditionally the last bastion of professional stand - offishness.

People want to know what they can demand of their doctors and their hospitals and what rights they have. Some of their questions will be answered Wednesday morning, May 11, when several health professionals talk about "How To Get the Most Help From Your Doctor, Hospital and Community Services."

The discussion, free, will begin at 10 a.m. at the Family Medical Canter of Valley Memorial Hospital, located at 9260 Alcosta Blvd.

Besides a panel discussion, a film will be shown, pamphlets will be available and a question - and - answer session will sum it up.

Taking part in the program will be Ruth Guenterberg, R.N., Family Medical Center head nurse; Margy Odell, VMH public information director; Margaret Myhrer, Contra Costa County health educator; and Jean Pollack, R.N., Alameda County public health nurse.

Wednesday will also bring free blood pressure checks, 1 - 3 p.m. also at the medical center. No appointment is necessary and the quick exam is free.

Interviews With Nixon Air Tonight

The first in a series of taped interviews with former President Richard Nixon will air Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5 and at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 10.

The 90-minute session is one of four in which British broadcaster David Frost will question Nixon on his life and highlights of his five-and-one-half-year presidency.

The tapes were made in an office near Nixon's San Clemente home and will be broadcast for four consecutive weeks.

The broadcast will not be nationwide, but at different times in different cities where television stations have bought the tapes for use at any time they wish.

Frost and his company, formed to make the interview, reportedly paid Nixon $650,000 to consent to being questioned in front of the cameras.

Joint health agency meets

The public is invited at a meeting Tuesday evening, May 10, of the newly forming 30 - member governing body of the Alameda - Contra Costa Health Systems Agency (HSA).

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the 12th floor conference room of Kaiser Hospital, MacArthur and Broadway, Oakland.

The HSA will be responsible for developing a health care delivery system for the two - county area. In addition, HSA will review the appropriateness of services provided by hospitals, nursing homes and other health institutions within the area.

It also recommends approval or disapproval of applications for new health services or medical facilities and will review and approve or disapprove projects under several federal health programs.

So far, 23 of the 30 board seats have been filled.
